Military Budget Sliced $2.5 Billion; Future Cuts Proposed

More than $2.5 billion was sliced from the military budget this week by the House Appropriations Committee.

The cut will not affect present manpower levels, the Committee said.

Almost half of the reduction ($1.2 billion) was charged to the Army. The Air Force lost $669 million and the Navy $685 million. The remainder ($6.2 million) is deleted from interservice activities and the office of the Secretary of Defense.

In sending the $33.5 billion budget to the House floor, the Committee declared that the cuts will not jeopardize either the United States' projected increase in military striking power or the national security.

Here are highlights of the Committee's report:

- The gap between U.S. and Soviet military strength is closing.

- Further "large savings" in the military budget are possible through deactivation of a number of military bases, both large and small. The Pentagon is requested to make recommendations.

- Rules for dependent medical care should be revised to eliminate free choice of civilian or military medical facilities except in areas where military facilities are inadequate.

- Service rivalry is becoming serious.
- The Pentagon should consider the possibility of getting rid of some of its

Army Selection Bd. Recommends 1,500 For Temporary Lieutenant Colonel

An Army selection board has recommended approximately 1,500 majors for temporary advancement to lieutenant colonel, including 12 doctors, five nurses, eight dentists, 25 veterinarians, 10 WAC's, 34 chaplains, and 23 Medical Service Corps officers.

The board considered all officers on the Army Promotion List with a cut-off date of rank of 30 June 1951. In the Service Corps, the cut-off dates of rank were 30 June 1952 for doctors and dentists, and 31 Dec. 1950 for nurses, WAC's, veterinarians, Medical Service officers, and chaplains were required to have the same cut-off date as those on the Army List.

The board, which convened in March, concluded deliberations on 1 May.

New AF Dep. C/S Post For Gen. Gerhart; Gens. Everest and Tunner Exchange Jobs

A large-scale shuffle of top Air Force jobs—marked by the creation of two new posts at Headquarters and abolition of a third—was touched off this week as President Eisenhower nominated five Senior Air Force officers for promotion.

A newly-created position — Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Programs—was given to Maj. Gen. John K. Gerhart, USAF.

Dental Care, Retired Coverage Discussed

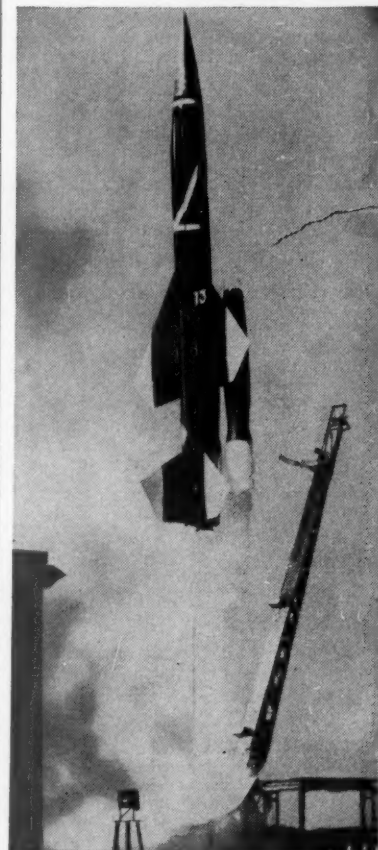

The problem of providing dental care for military dependents and extending the Dependent Medical Care Act to cover retired Service families "may, at some future date, require the attention of Congress."

This opinion is expressed by Maj. Gen. Paul I. Robinson, USA, Chief of the Dependents' Medical Care Office, in hearings released by the House Army Appropriations Subcommittee.

General Robinson told the committee, "Many of the personnel of the Army, Air Force and Public Health Service are unhappy that the dental care (even though it has been small and incomplete), which their dependents have had over the years, has been taken away from them by Public Law 569." Public Law 569 is the Medicare Act.

He said the problem "requires an exhaustive study before it can be presented

NAA Confers "Elder Statesman" Title On House Armed Services Chairman

CHAIRMAN Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee became an "Elder Statesman of Aviation" this week at a special Pentagon ceremony.

The honor, conferred by the National Aeronautic Association, was presented by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson on 21 May at a luncheon attended by a group of distinguished guests.

The NAA, through its Vice President Dr. John F. Victory, cited Chairman Vinson for the important role which he has played in the development of U. S. air might. Doctor Victory, who is also Executive Secretary of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, said of Representative Vinson:

"Over a long period of years he has, with exceptional competency and vision, provided for the vitally important development of all segments of air power, and has demonstrated outstanding leadership in providing a sound legislative basis for the national security."

In accepting the citation from Secretary Wilson, Chairman Vinson said that he and others who write the law and formulate policies "nevertheless play but a minor role in the full development of aviation." He said, "The greater contribution to American aviation is made by the men and women who labor at the drafting boards, the scientists at the wind tunnels, the engineers at the test laboratories, and above everyone else, those brave and patriotic officers and men who have in the past and are now dedicating their lives to the actual operation of manned aircraft who proudly wear on their uniforms the insignia of the pilot's wings."

He told the gathering that he had "no hesitancy in saying that today the capabilities of American aviation are of such powerful and forefearful character as to provide the nation with the shield of protection that gives us the peace we enjoy at this hour."

Among those attending the luncheon in honor of the veteran Member of Congress were Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas, jr., the Joint Chiefs of Staff and members of the House Armed Services Committee. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was represented by Dr. Hugh L. Dryden.

NAA representatives at the ceremony in addition to Doctor Victory were Col. Tom G. Lanphier, jr., President of the organization and also Vice President of the Convair Division of General Dynamics and Assistant to the President for Long Range Planning; and the Honorable William P. MacCracken, jr., first Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

RAdm. Hoskins Heads DoD Declassification

RAdm. John M. Hoskins, USN, has been named Director of Declassification Policy for the Defense Department, by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

In November 1953, the President issued an Executive Order concerning safeguarding of top-drawer information. At that time, the President eliminated the category "restricted."

Admiral Hoskins' office will be under direction of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs). He will have responsibility for the development, interpretation and dissemination of policy regarding uniform standards and procedures for downgrading and declassifying classified material; monitoring the downgrading and declassification programs of all agencies of the Department of Defense; and developing and interpreting policies regarding downgrading and declassification of classified material of joint concern to the Department of Defense and (a) other departments or agencies in the Executive Branch, (b) the Congress, (c) foreign governments, (d) international collective defense organizations, and (e) defense contractors.

Gen. Gruenther Praises AF Unit and Captain

An Air Force Captain, his unit and a town in North Carolina have won highest praise from Red Cross President General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA-Ret.

Sparkplugged by Capt. Neal Clemmer of the 632d Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron in Roanoke Rapids, N. C., a recent local blood drive has broken all records for towns comparably sized. Officers and airmen of the Roanoke Rapids Air Force Station joined hands with the Red Cross and all local civic organizations to stage a blood-drive that has communities all over the state eager to try.

General Gruenther, learning about the efforts of this isolated USAF unit to show how a blood drive should be conducted, invited Captain Clemmer, squadron commander Maj. George T. Milonas, Mayor W. Howard Pruden of Roanoke Rapids and Brig. Gen. Emmett F. Yost, commander of the 85th Air Division (Defense) to his office. He expressed his hopes that all similar units of USAF and other services would follow the pattern set by the tarheel USAF squadron.

NACA Scientist Honored For Discovery That Makes Long Range Missile Possible

Equation on first page:—

The amount of heat equals the friction drag divided by twice the total drag multiplied by one-half the mass times the square of the entry velocity.

COUPLED with an award to their scientist responsible, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics has revealed details of the revolutionary departure in design which first brought the long-range and intercontinental missile within the realm of possibility.

The Distinguished Service Medal, NACA's highest award, was presented to Mr. H. Julian Allen, Chief of the high-speed research division of the NACA's Ames Aeronautical Laboratory, for his discovery that a high-drag blunt nose, rather than an aerodynamically clean low-drag shape, would enable a long range hypersonic missile to reenter the earth's atmosphere and hit its target without being consumed by intense heat.

Mr. Allen formulated his theory in 1953 but it has been kept under security wraps until recently. Before his discovery all missile thinking had been tied in with airplane thinking—designers could not get away from the belief that an aerodynamically clean form was necessary. But Mr. Allen proved that whereas a sharp nose missile had to absorb about 50 percent of the enormous heat (10,000 to 15,000 degrees) created by its 15,000 mile-per-hour speed when it reentered the earth's atmosphere, a blunt nose form would dissipate more than 99 percent of the heat and energy into the atmosphere through the creation of a great shock wave. Thus, a blunt nose is required to absorb only about one-half percent of the heat.

The remaining problem is to use the smallest amount of a metal which has high heat absorbent and conductivity qualities, such as copper, silver or beryllium, which may be necessary to take care of the heat created. This is under continuing study.

Mr. Allen's discovery came in January of 1953 and was so revolutionary that it met with some resistance before it was accepted. But by the end of 1953 missiles were being redesigned in accordance with the new theory.

LT. GEN. JAMES H. DOOLITTLE, USAF, Chairman of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, presents the Distinguished Service Medal to H. Julian Allen in recognition of his important contribution to the solution of the re-entry problem of long-range ballistic missiles.

Before this discovery the question had been whether an intercontinental missile was possible at all. After his discovery scientists knew that a long-range ballistic missile could be built to safely reenter the atmosphere and hit its target without burning up.

Fortifying Allen's discovery, about the same time there was the breakthrough in atomic energy whereby an atomic or hydrogen bomb could be made small enough to be carried acceptably in a missile.

Prior to Mr. Allen's theory, missile thinking was going along lines of providing a coolant, such as water, to keep the missile's temperature down. But this seemed an impossible theory because the amount of coolant a missile carried had constantly to be increased to provide additional coolant to keep the coolant cool. It apparently was a dead end theory because it ran the missile's weight out to infinity.

Mr. Allen is a graduate of Leland Stanford University. He lives at 769 Melville Street, Palo Alto, Calif.

SGO Dietitian Goes To Valley Forge Hosp.

Maj. Barbara Ryan, AMSC, now on duty as hospital dietitian in the Food Service Section, Medical Plans and Operations Division, Office of The Surgeon General of the Army has been named to be Chief, Food Service Division, Valley Forge Army Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa.

She plans to report for her new assignment on 24 June.

10th Division Shifts

Lt. Col. Edward P. Ludington, USA, has assumed duties as 10th Division G-1 (Personnel) Officer, Wuerzburg, Germany. He replaces Lt. Col. John C. Hansen USA, who goes to the USAREUR G-1 (Training) Section in Heidelberg.

As successor to Col. Ludington Lt. Col. Sam J. Adams, jr., USA, has been assigned to command the 3d Battalion of the 10th Division's 86th Infantry Regiment in Schweinfurt.

Cordiner Group "Four-Square" Behind Program; "Bits and Pieces" Won't Work

SIGNIFICANT improvements in the present wasteful personnel policies can not be achieved by enacting only a "few bits and pieces" of the recommended program, or by attempting to retain outstanding personnel with "watered-down incentives," Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner, Chairman of the Defense Advisory Committee on Professional and Technical Compensation declared 18 May at the Armed Forces Day Dinner in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Cordiner

"The Committee," its chairman made plain, "stands four-square behind its complete balanced program, which was carefully designed to produce positive and long-lasting results."

Mr. Cordiner's speech in strong support of the incentive compensation program put forward by his committee was inserted in the Congressional Record of 20 May by Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) with the statement that he agrees "that vast savings in military manpower could be achieved if the recommendations of the Cordiner Committee in that connection were followed."

Mr. Symington jointly with Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) has introduced the Cordiner bill in the Senate. Also Representative James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) and Stewart L. Udall (D-Ariz.) have introduced the measure in the House.

Not only has the taxpayers' money been essentially wasted under the present system, said Mr. Cordiner, who is President of the General Electric Co., but during the time that expensive replacements are in training, the combat readiness of the United States is weakened.

Mr. Cordiner asserted that he is confident that "when this issue has been brought constructively before the public, they will enthusiastically support legislation that will simultaneously strengthen the National Security, reduce the cost of National Defense, save the lives of their sons in training and combat, introduce greater justice into the pay system of the Armed Forces, and ultimately reduce the number of citizens required to maintain the National Defense."

In his address Mr. Cordiner said:

"Men with critically needed skills, both officers and enlisted personnel, are leaving the armed forces at a shocking rate."

"Among enlisted personnel, there is a 25% re-enlistment rate in the common skills identified as 'supporting services,' such as truck drivers and cooks. The armed forces have more than enough of these skills which can be learned quickly and require little training investment by the government. But among the electronic and other technical skills that require high investments in time and money, there is only a 13% re-enlistment rate. It is an alarming fact that 87% of the people with these critical skills—the skills that count most in a technically advanced form of defense—are leaving the armed forces as fast as they can, for the greater incentives of civilian life."

"AMONG OFFICERS the picture is equally discouraging. Too few junior officers are willing to remain on active duty beyond their minimum obligated tour. These capable young officers see no satisfying future in career military service, because the top positions are in no way comparable to their opportunities in civilian life. Thus, 73% of the junior officers completing obligated tours of duty during fiscal 1955 promptly returned to civilian life."

"Indicative of the attrition rate in specialized, expensively produced skills is the fact that officer losses during fiscal 1955 included nearly 4,000 pilots whose departure represented a minimum training loss alone of 480 million dollars. Not only has the taxpayers' money been essentially wasted, but during the time that their expensive replacements are in training, the combat readiness of the United States is weakened."

"LET US GIVE FULL CREDIT to the armed forces. They are striving valiantly to train replacements as fast as they lose their experienced people. Thus, we now have the immensely wasteful expense of half a million men and billions of dollars worth of equipment tied up in repetitive training, contributing little to an improvement of the nation's ready combat capability. While some turnover in the armed forces is of course necessary and desirable, today's turnover of personnel is extravagantly wasteful of the nation's human and material resources."

"Yet, under the present federal laws governing the armed forces compensation structure, the Defense Department cannot undertake the necessary corrective action."

Gen. LeMay Sees "Enormous Savings" If Career Incentive Were Adopted

"When the United States Air Force ceases to be a vocational school and becomes a life work for dedicated young men, enormous savings will be possible."

So declared General Curtis E. LeMay, Commander-in-Chief of the Strategic Air Command, 16 May in an address to the Deadline Club in New York City.

The General, soon to be Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force, described with approval the report of the Cordiner Committee and the introduction of its bill into Congress.

"As of now," he said, "with the well considered career compensation proposals recently set before the Congress, we may hope for eventual action in dollar-costing people wisely, just as we must dollar-cost weapons and weapon-systems in terms of their contribution to the National Security."

"Look at it this way," General LeMay said, "the modern deterrent force is a highly technical organization and demands for its upkeep a high order of intelligence and experience. Yet, in the Strategic Air Command, only eight per cent of our enlisted grades today has been with us more than four years, which is a single enlistment."

"Furthermore, forty-five per cent of our airmen are in their first year in SAC, and we already know that unless things change, we can expect the majority of these men to leave us in three more years—just when they have begun to gain that vitally needed experience. Last year, more than thirty thousand SAC airmen left the service at the end of their first enlistments. These men took their new skills with them, and it cost the Air Force nearly half a billion dollars to train their replacements for SAC alone."

"This condition applies equally throughout the Air Force."

"It is a needless loss of public funds. But we are going to have to live with such losses until the compensations for highly skilled military technicians are brought more nearly in line with those of their civilian counterparts. And we must not overlook the fact that retention of higher levels of skills will permit some reduction in total manpower strength, while raising the overall combat capability of the Air Force."

AF Builds Airfield On Floating Ice Cake

The Air Force has set up a camp and air field near the North Pole on a floating ice cake four miles square.

The polar camp, which is moving toward the North Pole at the rate of a mile a day, will be used by scientists engaged in projects connected with the International Geophysical Year.

The camp was officially placed into commission on 22 May when Maj. Gen. James H. Davies, USAF, Commander, Alaskan Air Command, planted an American flag on the drifting ice. While at the site, General Davies decorated three officers and a civilian for outstanding performance of duty in the Far North project.

Those who received commendations: Maj. Richard E. Freeman, USAF, Camp Commander; Capt. Burton P. Jenkins, USAF, Alaskan Air Command pilot who made the first landing on the ice in a ski-equipped C-47 almost two months ago; Father Tom Cunningham, Far North Air Force Chaplain and Special Advisor for the expedition, and Mr. Fritz Awe, Arctic Advisor for AAC who supervised building of the ice runway.

Free Major League Games

Uniformed service personnel will continue to be admitted free to all 1957 games played at home by the Yankees, Dodgers, and the Giants.

Career Plan "Essential," Adm. Burke Declares

The Cordiner Committee's program "to make military careers more attractive, to reward outstanding service and advanced skill, is essential to keep us in step with the times," Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, declared this week.

The CNO stated that "when it is possible to give them full effect, the Cordiner recommendations will result in a significant improvement in reenlistments, retention of young officers and improved morale." He said the program will keep the Navy at the peak of operating effectiveness at less cost to the taxpayer.

Navy Offers New Course In Aviation Medicine

A new Navy Medical Department correspondence course, entitled "Aviation Medicine Practice," is available for enrollment by Regular and Reserve officers and enlisted men.

Numbered NavPers 109-A, the course consists of six assignments and is worth 18 Naval Reserve promotion or retirement points. Interested officers and men should submit applications on form NavPers 992 (Revised 2-56), through the chain of command, to the Commanding Officer, U. S. Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda 14, Md.

CAPT. IVEN C. KINCHELOE, USAF, who has been awarded the Mackay Trophy for having flown the Bell X-2 research aircraft to the highest altitude ever reached by man. Powered by a Curtiss-Wright rocket engine capable of developing power almost equal to that of a modern Navy cruiser, the X-2 was a development of the combined efforts of the Bell Aircraft Corp. and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

MAJ. ROBINSON RISNER, USAF, climbs aboard his North American F-100 Super Sabre. He set an unofficial record by flying his F-100 from Palmdale, Calif., to McGuire, AFB, N. J., in 3 hours 38 minutes, prior to taking off for Paris, following the route taken by Charles Lindbergh 30 years ago. He made the crossing from McGuire to Paris in 6 hours and 37 minutes—one fifth of Lindbergh's time. His F-100 was refueled twice in the air.

CAPT. E. MARIE BAIRD and 1st Lt. Ruth L. Simmons prepare to leave their duty stations at Ft. McPherson, Ga., for new assignments at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. They will be the only WAC officers assigned there.

U. S. Army

Army Set For 5500 RA Appts. In FY '58

Lt. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, forecasts 5500 Augmentation Program appointments—2440 of them to captain's rank in the Regular Army.

He has told Congress that about 1000 appointments, largely in junior officer ranks, will be made this summer.

Almost 22,000 Reserve officers now on active duty applied for Regular billets. Of this number, the Army plans to make during fiscal '58 5 appointments to colonel, 130 to lieutenant colonel, 975 to major, 2440 to captain, 1450 to first lieutenant and 500 to second lieutenant.

The Army will end the current fiscal year on 30 June 1957 with about 28,000 Regular officers, out of a total officer strength of 100,100.

A year later, there will be 35,800 Regular officers on active duty—this includes new second lieutenants—out of 100,000 officers.

This means a percentage gain in RA officer strength from 28 to 35.8, with subsequent RA appointments planned in small increments through fiscal '63 under the Augmentation Law.

M/G Zwicker Reports to 24th

Maj. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, USA, has arrived in Korea to assume command of the 24th Infantry "Taro Leaf" Division, General I. D. White, USA, AFPE/Eighth Army Commanding General, announces.

He takes over command of the division from Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, III, USA, Division Artillery Commander, who has been serving as Acting Commander of the 24th since Maj. Gen. Russell L. Vittrup, USA, left to become AFPE/Eighth Army Chief of Staff.

Army Warrants

The Army plans little change in its warrant officer strength.

Personnel officials have advised Congress that the warrant officer strength by grade will be as follows for fiscal '58 (fiscal '57 comparisons are in parentheses).

REGULAR ARMY—306 in W-4 (306); 835 in W-3 (835); 158 in W-2 (159) and 1 in W-1 (none)—for a total of 1300 regular warrants, the exact number planned for the end of this fiscal year.

RESERVE AND AUS—554 in W-4 (554); 1236 in W-3 (1237); 6012 in W-2 (6308); and 1398 in W-1 (1400), for a fiscal '58 total of 9200, or 300 more than on 30 June 1957.

NATIONAL GUARD—10 in W-4 (9); 29 in W-3 (28); 60 in W-2 (63) and 1 in W-1 (none), for a fiscal '58 active duty strength of 100, the exact number planned for 30 June 1957.

6,000 Participate In LOGEX 57, Army's Largest Peacetime Logistical Exercise

LOGEX 57, the Army's largest peacetime logistical exercise, ended at Ft. Lee, Va., 17 May with American Forces in excellent position to deal the Aggressor enemy a knock-out blow in his homeland.

This simulated war against a hypothetical enemy is conducted each year to provide practical problems for the advance classes of Army technical and administrative schools as well as selected reserve officers.

The giant exercise, which had more than 6,000 military participants this year, is based on technical and administrative problems, with only a tactical framework employed to provide realism. Prepared by the 1st Logistical Command of Ft. Bragg, N. C., it is conducted under the general supervision of the Commanding General, CONARC.

During the play of this year's problem, atomic warfare was employed both offensively and defensively, thereby creating many new aspects of play in the logistics field. Enemy atomic weapons were used against naval unloading areas, troop and unit installations, depots, natural barriers such as rivers, and against cities and industrial areas. American atomic weapons were employed against military and industrial targets.

In addition to Army players, representatives of the State Department, Navy and Air Force also participated.

At final ceremonies, Brig. Gen. A. G. Viney, USA, Commanding General of the 1st Logistical Command and Maneuver

Director of LOGEX 57 thanked the participating agencies and personnel.

"I noticed, during the play," he pointed out, "that a number of errors and rough spots, particularly the first few days. But the fact that these diminished considerably by the end of the exercise gave me great satisfaction."

Other general officers who spoke to the assembly were Maj. Gen. Ira K. Evans, USA, Commanding General of the Quartermaster Training Command and Ft. Lee; Brig. Gen. Teddy Sanford, USA, G-4, United States Continental Army Command, and Brig. Gen. James I. King, USA, Chief Umpire for LOGEX 57.

How Will Army Carry Out Programs Under New Budget? Here Are Details

The $7.6 billion budget approved for the Army this week by the House Appropriations Committee will, the Committee states, enable the Army to "continue to make a powerful contribution to the total armed strength of the United States."

The President originally asked for $8.4 billion for the Army. This was reduced by the Committee to $7.2 billion with the stipulation that $400 million additional would be transferred to the Army's account from other unused funds.

The Committee, at the President's suggestion, cut $516 million from Army procurement and production funds because the money would not be obligated before the end of fiscal '58.

In broad terms, this is how the Committee said the $7.6 billion budget will enable the Army to carry out its programs:

Manpower—The military end strength in fiscal year 1958 will be 1,000,000 and the average strength 997,000, organized into 17 divisions, 9 regimental combat teams and 126 antiaircraft battalions and other combat support units compared with an end strength of 1,000,000 and an average strength of 999,800, in the current year divided into 18 divisions, 9 regimental combat teams and 122 antiaircraft battalions and other combat support units. The reorganization of the divisions into new style "Pentomic" units geared for conventional and/or atomic warfare which is underway is scheduled for completion by the end of fiscal year 1958.

The Army plans to employ 586,590 civilians in military functions on 30 June 1958, compared with a projected strength of 589,590 on 30 June 1957, and an actual strength of 592,063 on 30 June 1956. The budget provides for a beginning and end strength for fiscal year 1958 of 405,000 direct-hire civilians in support of military functions. This compares with an actual strength on 30 June 1956, of 406,661. In addition to these direct-hire employees, the Army will employ through contractual arrangements with foreign governments, 184,590 local nationals at the beginning of the fiscal year, decreasing to 181,590 by 30 June 1958. This compares with an actual strength of contract-hire personnel 30 June 1956, of 185,392. This decrease is due primarily to a reduction of activities in the Far East Command. The Committee is of the opinion that the planned civilian employee strength is too large in comparison with the troop strength supported. This matter is discussed more fully under the Operation and Maintenance section of this report.

Materiel—The procurement program places maximum emphasis on the introduction of newly developed items into the Army's supply system, items such as guided missiles, aircraft, and new weapons as are necessary in order for the Army to attain the required combat and defense capability needed for future warfare. During this period of transition the procurement program is directed at providing a steady rate of modernization together with a balance of conventional items in the inventory.

It is planned to limit new production facilities to those required for the current manufacture of new or highly critical items, and those facilities and equipment required for the manufacture of items during mobilization will be placed on a standby basis upon the termination or completion of present production contracts. Further discussion of this subject appears in the paragraph on Central Supply Activities under the Operation and Maintenance appropriation.

Installations—The current program does not provide for opening or closing of any major installations in continental United States or its possessions. The Army is urged to increase its effort to strive for maximum use of its physical plant, to consolidate activities, and reduce nonessential services.

Reserve Components—The number of Army Reservists and National Guardsmen in drill pay status will increase from 680,900 at the end of fiscal year 1957 to 697,000 at the end of fiscal year 1958. This will be composed of 400,000 National Guardsmen and 297,000 Army Reservists.

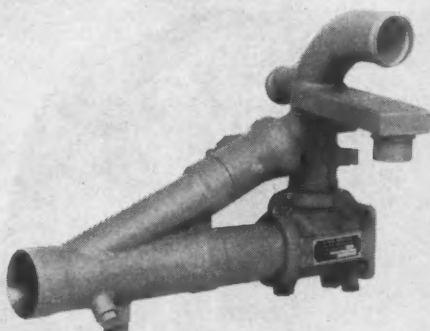

Research and Development—Effort in this field will continue at approximately the same level and will be directed toward providing the implements of increased mobility and fire power, better communications, and improved logistic systems.

Army Senior Wings

At a special presentation ceremony, Capt. Jim G. Meares, USA, Chief of Procedures and Reports Branch, Aviation Department, became the fifth Ft. Huachuca pilot to earn his senior wings. To earn the senior wings, a pilot must have logged at least 1,500 air hours and served seven years in Army Aviation.

Captain Meares actually has flown over 3,000 hours, but much of this time was spent in the service of the Air Force. Col. Horace M. Wood, USA, Chief of the Aviation Department, presented the award to Capt. Meares, a 12 year service veteran.

BuMed Needs Polio Data To Continue Shot Plan

The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery is conducting a survey of Navy commands to determine how many Servicemen and their families have received immunization against poliomyelitis.

Since supplies of the vaccine will "probably be limited to some degree during the next few months, recurrent consideration must be given to problems of distribution of available stocks of vaccine to the populations at the greatest risk either because of age or geographic location."

Navy Giving Bell HUL-1 Workout In Turkey

The first Bell HUL-1 helicopter put on detached duty since the new model joined the fleet is getting a full workout on a seven-month tour of duty with Helicopter Utility Squadron 2 aboard the U.S.S. Tanner, Atlantic Fleet.

The Navy plans to fly the HUL an average of 60 hours monthly in mountainous terrain where temperatures often exceed 115 degrees, according to Lt. A. L. Stings, USN, in charge of Detachment 76 aboard the Tanner.

Veiled for security reasons, the operation largely will take place in Turkey.

The HUL-1 aboard the Tanner is one of eight scheduled to be received by the parent HU-2 Squadron. They will be deployed primarily for work on the DEW Line radar network in the Arctic and Operation Deep Freeze in the Antarctic.

Copters For Anti-Sub

Helicopters, operating from destroyers, soon may be used to augment the Navy's anti-submarine warfare system.

Tests are underway off Newport, R. I., involving the USS Mitscher (DL-2) and Navy Bell HUL-1 and Kaman HTK-1K copters.

Select 110 Officers For New London

The Navy has picked 110 ensigns and lieutenants (jg) for attendance at the Basic Submarine Officers Course, convening at the Submarine School, U. S. Naval Submarine Base, New London, Conn., on 8 July.

Individual notification of selection or nonselection of officers who made application will not be issued by the Bureau of Personnel.

The Navy is now accepting applications from officers who desire to enter the next class which meets in January 1958. Officers may be Regular or active duty Reservists. Ensigns must have dates of rank prior to 1 Jan. 1957, while lieutenants (jg) are required to dates of rank of 1 Jan. 1955, or later.

Applications must reach BuPers not later than 1 Sept.

Navy Loses Seaplane Tender But Wins $300 Million Atomic Aircraft Carrier

The House Appropriations Committee this week approved a $9.9 billion budget for the Navy and Marine Corps for the coming fiscal year.

The amount requested was $10.4. The Committee agreed on $9.8, but provided that an additional $190 million be transferred to the Navy account from other unexpended funds.

Funds for the conversion of an existing ship to a seaplane tender for large seaplanes such as the P6M Seamaster were deleted. The Committee said it believes "such a complex conversion should not be attempted until the Navy has more basic data with reference to the large seaplanes, especially the P6M and the new planes for which funds are being appropriated." The remainder of the shipbuilding program was approved.

The Navy budget, the Committee said, provides for:

Active Fleet—Operation of an Active Fleet at an approximately level strength of 983 active ships. The active fleet will be improved by receipt of 23 new ships and 10 newly converted ships from prior year construction programs. Planned manning levels will be maintained constant at an average of 80 per cent of wartime strengths.

Ship Building—Emphasis is placed upon construction of a nuclear propelled attack carrier, five guided missile destroyers, four nuclear submarines including three with guided missile launching capabilities. Conversions include one attack carrier and one guided missile cruiser. In addition, four ocean escorts will be converted to radar picket ships. In total, 19 ships will be added from new construction and 11 by conversion. A list of the various vessels in the 1958 program will be found on page 670 of the Committee hearings. Provision is also made for continued maintenance and limited modernization of a reserve fleet estimated to be about 1,450 ships.

Operating Aircraft—Naval aviation will utilize about 11,800 active aircraft, of which slightly less than 10,000 will be in daily operational status, a strength essentially equal to the fiscal year 1957 program. The per cent of modernity and combat potential will increase during fiscal year 1958 with the receipt of more modern aircraft. Additional Navy and Marine air squadrons will have guided missile capabilities.

Aircraft Procurement—The aircraft procurement program is designed to modernize and increase the combat potential of the authorized forces. The fiscal year 1958 program provides for the procurement of approximately 1,220 aircraft which, when coupled with prior procurement, will provide for approximately 2,100 new aircraft deliveries to the Navy and Marine Corps during the year.

Marine Corps—The budget provides for the continuation of an active Marine Corps combat force with the maintenance of a balanced force in readiness of three combat divisions and three aircraft wings with necessary reinforcing combat and logistic support forces. The strength of the Marine Corps will be maintained at the level of 200,000 military personnel.

Naval Personnel—The bill provides for a beginning and end-year Naval personnel strength of 675,000. Planned distribution of these personnel will provide for substantially the same operating forces as in fiscal year 1957 and will continue the support of training establishments at reasonable levels of adequacy. The military strength of both the Navy and the Marine Corps during fiscal year 1958 will be maintained through voluntary enlistments.

Reserve Personnel—The Navy reserve personnel strength in fiscal year 1958 will increase from 147,762 to 150,383, with an ultimate strength goal of 155,000 in the drill-pay program. Emphasis will continue to be placed on more practical and team-type training and afloat cruises.

The Marine Corps Reserve program planned for fiscal year 1958 will increase from an average fiscal year 1957 drill pay strength of 44,112 to 47,754 with an ultimate goal of 55,000.

Navy Moves Five Picket Ships To Pacific Fleet

The Navy will transfer five Newport, R. I.-based radar picket ships to the Pacific Fleet in mid-July.

The ships are the USS Strickland (DER-333), USS Harveson (DER-316), USS Brister (DER-327), USS Fessenden (DER-142), and USS Joyce (DER-317). They will be under operational control of Admiral Felix B. Stump, USN, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet.

IT BELONGS AMONG THE BLUE CHIPS ... for Returns and Protection

For returns in dividends, your USAA automobile policy belongs among the "blue chips."

The savings to stateside USAA automobile policyholders currently amounts to 36% of manual rates—yet you enjoy the same adequate insurance protection offered by other highly rated companies.

Approximately 300,000 US Armed Forces officers already know this and that is why they are insured with USAA.

The liberal savings offered are possible because USAA operates as a non-profit association. Operating costs are kept down. No salesmen are employed nor are any commissions paid. Selling is done by mail, and eligibility is aimed at a preferred risk group.*

USAA has been serving officers with insurance since 1922. Throughout the United States and in the foreign areas served by USAA are attorneys and claims adjusters to promptly serve members in the event of an accident.

When it's time to insure... insure with confidence... give yourself the best and save too. Insure with USAA.

No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

12 Generals Move In Top Level Shifts

From first page—

Twelfth Air Force, U. S. Air Forces Europe, will be promoted to three-star rank in his new assignment. His successor was not named.

At the same time that the new Deputy C/S post is created, the post of Deputy Chief of Staff, Comptroller will be eliminated. Lt. Gen. Manuel J. Asensio, USAF, present Deputy C/S, Comptroller, will become Comptroller of the Air Force, a new title.

General Tunner, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Air Forces, Europe, will switch jobs with General Everest, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations. General Everest was nominated by the President for four-star rank in the European post.

The President also nominated General Power for four-star rank to be Commander-in-Chief, Strategic Air Command. He succeeds General Curtis E. LeMay, USAF, who becomes Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force.

General Power will turn over the reins of the Air Research and Development Command to General Anderson, Director of the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group, Office of the Secretary of Defense.

General Hall, Assistant Chief of Staff for Reserve Forces, was nominated for three-star rank to become Commander, Continental Air Command and Senior Air Force Member, Military Staff Committee, United Nations. He replaces Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, whose new assignment has not been announced.

General Todd, also nominated for three-star rank, leaves his present post as Vice Commander and Chief of Staff, Far East Air Forces, to become Chief of Staff of the United Nations Command in Korea. He succeeds General Barnes who has held a similar post in the Far East and who is also Chief of Staff of the Far East Command.

General Landry, Commander of the Fourth Air Force, Hamilton AFB, Calif., is being assigned to the Pentagon as Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel. He succeeds Maj. Gen. W. S. Stone, for whom no new assignment was announced.

MAJ. ROBERT KOLES, Col. Carlos Talbot, and Maj. Charles Jones, pilots of the three North American F-100 Super Sabres, pose with the models of their aircraft which will be placed on permanent exhibit at Jamestown Festival Park along with coins and replicas of historical documents plus letters from Sir Winston Churchill and the British Minister of Transportation which they carried on their historic commemorative flight from Blackwell, England, to Jamestown, Va.

Col. Lerom Will Direct Ops For Ohio Air N. G.

Col. John I. Lerom, USAFR, manager of presentations planning for the General Electric Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion Department (ANPD), has been named director of operations for headquarters, Ohio Air National Guard.

Active in aviation for the last 20 years, Colonel Lerom is a senior pilot and a former CAA inspector.

A graduate of the University of North Dakota with bachelor degrees in science and law, Colonel Lerom spent five years as civil aviation advisor to the governments of Peru and Panama. He left to become a member of the U. S. State Department's aviation policy staff. Prior to joining ANPD he served as deputy for reserve affairs in the office of the Secretary of the Air Force.

"TICKLED PINK"

A new record has been set for flying time logged by a Fairchild C-123 in Europe during one months time.

The plane AF 54623, of the 377th Sqdn., Dreux Air Base, France, established a new record of 11 hours flying time when it landed recently from a training mission.

Chief credit for the new mark is given to S/Sgt. Herber Waller, crew chief on the plane. Waller flew all the hours with the C-123 while it was establishing the record.

On hand to greet the crew, which included 1st Lt. James Wren, Pilot; 1st Lt. Paul Brady, co-pilot; and Sergeant Waller, was Lt. Col. D. W. Shanklin, Squadron Commander who presented Sergeant Waller with a huge pink feather. When he asked what the pink feather meant, he replied: "It means I'm tickled pink."

Committee Cuts AF Plane Procurement Budget; Promises "Substantial Program"

A $15.8 billion budget to operate the Air Force for the coming fiscal year was approved this week by the House Appropriations Committee.

The amount is $669.2 million less than was recommended by President Eisenhower. Most of the cut ($354 million) was made in the area of aircraft procurement.

The Committee noted, however, that the Air Force by 30 June of this year will have on hand and unspent for aircraft and related procurement a total of $11.2 billion in addition to the funds provided in the new budget. Of this amount, the Committee said, $4.5 billion is unobligated, thus providing "a very substantial procurement program," when added to the $5.8 billion recommended for fiscal '58.

Here is what the Committee had to say about manpower, aircraft and flying hours and the air Reserve forces:

MANPOWER

In the area of military personnel the Air Force will move from an on-board strength of 909,958 at end fiscal year 1956 to 920,700 at end fiscal year 1957 and to 925,000 at end fiscal year 1958. Civilian personnel on-board objective will reduce from 345,000 at end fiscal year 1957 to 341,000 at end fiscal year 1958.

Pilot training production, which includes training for the Air National Guard, the Military Assistance Program, and some Latin American countries, will decrease to 5,131, during fiscal year 1958. This, of course, is in line with the reduction of the force, as well as the introduction of missile units into the force.

AIRCRAFT AND FLYING HOURS

The USAF active aircraft inventory assigned to the regular Air Force, exclusive of Reserves and the Air National Guard, reduces from an end fiscal year 1957 position of approximately 21,000 to about 20,000 at end fiscal year 1958.

Of the total 9.4 million flying hours which the Air Force had programmed for regular units in fiscal year 1958, 38 per cent were to be flown in unit training, which is directly related to offensive and defensive capability; flying training was to account for 30 per cent; the transport squadrons of the Military Air Transport Service were to fly 8 per cent; combat readiness training was to account for 15 per cent; and the remaining 9 per cent was to be flown in test, test support, special mission, administrative, and ballment aircraft time. (The Committee has reduced the proposed flying hour program by 500,000 hours as a major economy move.)

AIR RESERVE FORCES

All 51 wings of the Air Reserve Forces are in existence—27 in the Air National Guard and 24 in the Air Force Reserve. . . .

During fiscal year 1958, 3 fighter bomb and 2 tactical bomb wings will convert to medium troop carrier units to be equipped with the C-119. (Additional details are given in the discussion under the appropriation for Reserve Personnel.)

The emphasis on the Air National Guard is being shifted to the function of Air Defense, and during fiscal year 1958 2 tactical bomb wings will convert to fighter interceptor wings.

Gen. Rawlings Will Get

Honorary Law Degree

General Edwin W. Rawlings, USAF, will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Hendrix College, Conway, Ark., 2 June. General Rawlings is commanding officer of the Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

General Rawlings will also deliver the graduation address to the Hendrix Class of 1957. Winthrop Rockefeller also will receive the Doctor of Laws degree.

Another honorary degree will be awarded to General Rawlings by Miami University at its commencement exercises 10 June.

Earlier this month Ohio Wesleyan University gave General Rawlings an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Previously honorary degrees had been conferred upon him by Hamline University and the University of Dayton.

Gen. Mitchell To Rome Depot

Brig. Gen. Clyde H. Mitchell, USAF, Deputy Director for Production at Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, for nearly three years, will become Commander of Rome, N. Y., Air Force Depot, succeeding Brig. Gen. Alfred R. Maxwell, USAF, who retired 17 May. General Mitchell will assume his new position this summer.

The high frontier

Far to the north of settlements, roads and railways, DEW line outposts stand guard over America. They were built with the help of Fairchild C-123 transports, which flew in the men and the construction material—even the radar antennas which now scan the arctic skies.

The C-123 commuter service to the DEW line goes on at the rate of up to eight tons of cargo per plane—and at the end of the line the landing strips have proven too rough, too hazardous for any other heavy-duty transport now in service.

The members of this polar bear club have come to depend on the C-123—just as the U. S. Armed Forces everywhere. The C-123 shares these qualities with other Fairchild aircraft: ruggedness, reliability, and ever increasing utility.

...WHERE THE FUTURE IS MEASURED IN LIGHT-YEARS!

The People Must Be Informed. It is significant that both Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner and General Curtis E. LeMay, in their recent addresses in support of the career incentives recommended by the Cordiner Committee, stressed the importance of informing the public of the issues involved.

Mr. Cordiner, in his speech reported on page 3 of this issue, said that he is "confident that, when this issue has been brought before the public, they will enthusiastically support legislation."

General LeMay (see page 3 of this issue) spoke before the Deadline Club, an organization of "reporters to the American people." After emphasizing the need for career incentives he pointed out that "In our democracy, ideas and doctrines cannot survive without public understanding and the support of public opinion. The American people must be informed. Only through an aggressive free press can they be provided the facts so that mature, collective opinion may be brought to bear on issues of transcending importance, such as national security and survival."

Certainly, it is in this respect that career incentive movement has fallen down. If the public understood that adoption of a program along these lines would mean a long-range savings in money plus substantially strengthened defense forces, they would demand Congressional action.

But they have not been so informed and will continue to frown on what looks to them like a pay rise until they are aware of what it would really mean.

Despite the Administration's belated effort to support its budget, there is no doubt but that Congress and the people are determined to reduce governmental expenditures, including those for the National Defense. However, an understanding of the career incentives idea would convince Congress and the public that economy and efficiency would both be served by adopting a plan along those lines.

Two Democrats (Senator Symington and Representative Udall) and two Republicans (Senator Goldwater and Representative Van Zandt) are sufficiently convinced so that they have introduced in their respective houses the draft of the Cordiner bill.

It is late. The economy wave apparently has so frightened the administration that it has done an about-face in its attitude toward career incentive pay. This condition tends to stifle the Department of Defense leaders in plugging the measure, although they were unanimous in their endorsement of it. (Secretary Wilson says that "Ultimately" it should form the foundation for an integrated program.) But, in any event, if these four members of Congress and their supporters take the floor and explain the significance of career incentives, they may not get immediate action, but they will certainly go a long way toward informing Congress and the people and laying the groundwork for future action.

Elder Statesman. Representative Carl Vinson's selection as "Elder Statesman of Aviation" will be warmly applauded throughout the military establishment.

The honor conferred upon the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee by the National Aeronautic Association cites Mr. Vinson's long years of outstanding leadership in the development of United States air power.

Chairman Vinson's pre-eminence in the entire field of military affairs has long been recognized by the rank and file of the Armed Forces, but it is particularly gratifying to note the public acknowledgement of his numerous contributions to the growth of aviation.

Air Force and Marine Corps, is completing his 43d year in the United States House of Representatives. For more than half that period he has served as Chairman of the old Naval Affairs Committee and of its successor, the Armed Services Committee. His leadership, which has always restrained his committee from the battleground of partisan politics, has been an inspiration to the United States Congress and to the great military leaders of the past and present who have turned to him for counsel and advice.

His new title, "Elder Statesman of Aviation," is like an oak leaf cluster to the ribbon which already marks Chairman Vinson as one of the founding fathers of present-day United States military might.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (24 May 1947)—In accordance with Administration policy to make the Soviet Government clearly understand that while anxious for peace we will not permit its spread of communism, various measures and statements were made in Washington this week which no doubt are of concern to Moscow. Signed by the President was the bill authorizing an appropriation of $400 millions to be used in furthering Greek and Turkish resistance to Russian pressure, and American delegations have arrived in those Mediterranean countries instructed to ascertain their economic and military needs.

50 Years Ago (25 May 1907)—The officers and men of Admiral Evans' fleet sent to Portsmouth are "dead broke" in consequence of their too generous expenditure for the entertainment of their foreign guests, the meager appropriations allowed them for this purpose being ridiculously inadequate. As such entertainment abroad are paid for out of the national treasury, the foreign visitors have naturally assumed that this was the case here.

90 Years Ago (25 May 1867)—(Excerpt from Booth's Diary): Friday 21st—After being hunted like a dog, through swamps and woods, and last night being chased by gunboats 'till I was forced to return, wet, cold and starving, with every man's hand against me, I am here in despair: and why? For doing what Brutus was honored for, for what made Tell a hero; and yet, I for striking down a greater tyrant than they ever knew, am looked upon as a common cut-throat. My action was purer than either of theirs."

Loss Of Family Dental Care Was No Accident

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The article in the 11 May issue of THE JOURNAL under the heading "Family Medical Program Has Big Hole; Dental Care Banned; etc," interested me greatly as the Department of the Army representative with the Moulton Commission which completed its study of medical and dental care in the Armed Services in June 1953, and which became the basis for the present Medical Care Act. I can assure you that the banning of dental care was no accident.

The commission conducted lengthy hearings on the subject at which representatives of the civilian medical and dental professions, service representatives, the Blue Cross, AMA, ADA, civilian hospital administrators, etc., were invited to express their views. One of the witnesses appearing before the commission was a young dentist who had served his military commitment assigned to the Dental Office at Ft. Myer and was then practicing dentistry in Washington, D. C. This young man told the commission that during his tour of active duty he had been ordered by his superior officer to take care of the dental requirements of the wives of high ranking officers while the men of the Fort were suffering for dental care. If such a thing happened it should not have of course, however, the statement of this one man so influenced the commission that it recommended "that dental treatment be restricted to emergency dental care—except in overseas or remote areas where civilian dental facilities are not available."

My efforts to persuade the commission that military dentists should not be prohibited by law from providing dental treatment for dependents of military personnel when they are not occupied with military personnel were unsuccessful, in fact the chairman of the commission shut me up with "Major you have lost" and the prohibition was written in over my dead body.

Now that the inequity of the situation has finally been recognized, maybe someone in authority will do something about it.

In a recent issue of THE JOURNAL you said "Enough Retired Generals to staff all the Army's divisions now reside in San Antonio, Tex. The recent retirement of Maj. Gen. Willard K. Liebel brought to 70 the number of Army retired generals living in that city."

Texas is forever bragging; but if you check the Roster of Retired Officers MDW, dated 1 Nov. 1956, you'll find that we have over 300 general officers, from brigadier general to 5-star (Bradley). So, let Texas take a look and ferme la porte. . .

Retired Enlisted Pay

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Well, once again the powers that be are talking about a pay raise for the Armed Forces which is as it should be. However once again the retired enlisted men are the forgotten men. Oh yes, they gave us a very small raise a few years ago, about 4 per cent which was taken away from us in income tax.

They want young men to make a career of the Service. Why should they when they see how the retired enlisted men are being treated? Service personnel are the only people that pay tax on retired pay. And now we must pay tax on G.I. insurance dividends that we leave to draw interest.

All Retired pay should be tax free for all retired members of the Armed Forces. Regardless of grade.

Our retired pay should be computed at 75 per cent of what we were drawing at the time of retirement or the highest grade held regardless of the amount of service, including quarters allowance.

We may not pay for our retirement with cash, but we pay with our lives. We have no permanent home while serving in the Armed Forces, we are assigned to some far corner of the earth away from our families with very low pay compared to our civilian components that don't have to worry about where they might be living next week.

A man likes to know that when he gets old and retires he can really retire. It is no joking matter for an old man to try to get work. After being away from civilian life for 20 or 30 years, regardless of what his trade may be.

JUST A RETIRED M/Sgt.

Worse Than Nothing

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

There is no question about the fact that retired military personnel have taken a bigger beating in the fouled-up mess attending the Cordiner Committee pay plan than anybody else.

On the basis of the exchange of letters between the Secretary of Defense and the Director of the Budget Bureau (THE JOURNAL 4 May), it now seems certain that a pay bill is dead for this year.

That is bad enough, but the fact Secretary Wilson proposed that no pay adjustment be given to retired persons sets an ominous precedent. I hope you will keep up the efforts to assure that retired servicemen are treated equitably in any future pay action.

Observers Report On French Army Helicopter Combat Experience In Algeria

PROBLEMS encountered and lessons learned from observation of the French Army helicopter operations against the Rebel bands in Algeria were reported to the American Helicopter Society's meeting in Washington by T. R. Pierpont and L. J. Geier.

The two observers, who are Service Manager and Service Requirements Specialist, respectively, for the Vertol Aircraft Corporation, Morton, Pa., reported specifically on the operations of Vertol H-21 helicopters in Algeria.

A number of the lessons developed from the French operations have resulted in recommendations to the U. S. Army and have been put under study and test at the Army Aviation Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala., under command of Brig. Gen. Carl I. Hutton, USA.

Specific mention was made in the paper of the following:

1) Use of helicopter mounted machine guns and rockets to suppress enemy ground fire (See page one of last week's JOURNAL).

2) Desirability of specialized pilot training under widely varying conditions. The speakers recommended Camp Carson or Lowry AFB, Colo., as suitable sites.

3) Use of a loud speaker in the cabin so that the pilot and troop commander may talk directly to the assault troops. Vertol and RCA have built such a system which is now being evaluated by the U. S. Army Aviation Board at Ft. Rucker under the direction of Col. Robert R. Williams, USA, President.

The speakers strongly recommended that a U. S. military observation team be sent to Algeria. "There is much the U. S. military could learn in Algeria," they said. "Every effort should be made to send an observation team. If this is politically impossible, a meeting should be arranged in a neutral area with the French Algerian commanders."

Of course, all available reports from the French Army aviation experience in Algeria are the subject of intensive study by our Army aviation authorities.

Following are pertinent extracts from the paper presented by Messers Pierpont and Geier:

Mission Types

Two basic types of helicopter assault missions are conducted by the French against the Algerian rebel bands. Briefly, they are:

THE IMMEDIATE REPRISAL MISSION. In this type of operation, speed of troop delivery is the prime factor. When a rebel band has been detected either by liaison aircraft, ground troops or the widespread French intelligence system, the objective is to attack before they can disperse. Given eight hours between detection and engagement, the rebel band is usually nowhere to be found. Since they are not a regular army, they can immediately blend into the population or become local farmers and shepherds, practically impossible to detect.

THE PRE-PLANNED MISSION. In this approach, a completely pre-planned operation in a defined area is programmed. The operation may be planned days or weeks in advance. The purpose is to invade a certain area of suspected or unusually high rebel band activity and clean out all rebels found. The helicopters deliver the troops to the area, conduct re-supply operations, aid in shifting troop concentrations and carry out the wounded. In such cases they are under the command of the local troop commander during the entire period. The French believe this type of operation is not usually the best approach since it stirs up the local population and at times creates more rebels than they capture or kill.

OPERATIONAL RECORD TO 27 MARCH 1957:

Total Hours Flown In Algeria: 4925.
Total Hours Flown In France: 1270. (8 helicopters have passed the 300 hour inspection).
Number of Troops Carried to Date: 40,000
Number of Combat Missions Flown Including Cargo and Resupply: 4,000.
Average Number of Troops Carried Per Troop Assault Mission: 13.2.

Changes Desirable to Improve the H-21

LOUD SPEAKERS. It has been found most desirable to install a loud speaker system in the cabin operable by both the pilots and troop commander. This is needed because the troop commander must give deployment instructions to the men prior to their disembarkment. Furthermore, it has been learned that the pilot should be the one who gives the actual order for the troops to leave the helicopter because on occasion enemy fire or climatic and terrain conditions make it necessary for him to either abort his selected landing spot after touchdown or make several passes before actually landing. The use of ICS (intercommunication system) has not proven satisfactory because it must be remembered that the troops are not airborne trained and that combat gear makes the use of the ICS very difficult.

In addition to working on a French loud-speaker system, Vertol and RCA have designed and fabricated a loudspeaker system which is now at Fort Rucker being evaluated by the US Army Aviation Board.

REAR VIEW MIRRORS. It has been found very helpful to install rear view mirrors for the pilot and co-pilot. These are used to observe the terrain around the main wheels as the helicopter is lowered the last few feet. Commercial bus mirrors are available and easily fastened to the nose support structure.

STEP AND HAND-HOLDS. It has been found desirable to install a larger step and internal foldable hand-holds at the main cabin door because of the difficulty the troops had in climbing into the aircraft with heavy combat equipment, such as the field radio, on their backs. These were locally manufactured and installed with no problem.

ADDITIONAL POWER. In order to secure additional power the following improvements are being made: a. The installation of an improved engine cooling fan that requires less horsepower. b. Redesigning the carburetor air intake duct so that advantage is taken of the pressure rise behind the fan.

These changes add approximately 40 horsepower to the rotors above critical altitudes and are being incorporated in the U. S. Military and commercial helicopters as well as the French. Of course, the final answer to the power problem is the twin turbine powered H-21D now nearly ready for flight.

Lessons Applicable to Helicopter Operations in General

SUPPRESSIVE FIRE from the helicopter is most desirable in helicopter troop assault operations. (See story on page one last week's JOURNAL.)

THREE POSITION COCKPIT. There is absolute need for the troop commander and pilot to freely converse and be physically located together. We find that when carrying out assault operations against an enemy not in fixed positions, that the last 30 seconds before commitment of the helicopter is most important. At this time, the troop commander and the pilot must mutually agree upon a landing site. There are many excellent sites from the pilot's standpoint that are untenable from the troop commander's standpoint and vice versa.

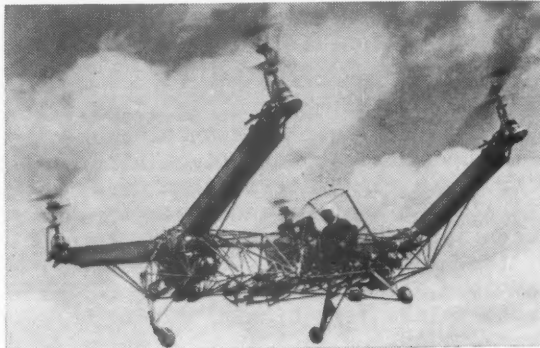

Consequently, in all operations, the troop commander actually stands in the cockpit doorway between the pilot and co-pilot and they converse by shouting in each other's ear rather than trying to work through the intercom system. A large scale map is usually placed on the console directly in front of them so that they can jointly point and gesture while arbitrating where they are going to land.

The French Army Pilots have spoken so much about this that it is certain future troop assault helicopters should feature three position cockpits with a jump seat for the troop commander.

PILOT TRAINING. Cargo and troop assault helicopter pilot training, as it is functioning today in the U. S. Military, is believed inadequate for an operation such as Algeria. Based on both their Indo-Chinese and Algerian operations considerably prior to arrival of the H-21's, the French Army found their operational losses became prohibitive until they undertook an entirely different approach to pilot training than had hitherto been in practice or had been widely considered necessary.

The most important aspect is that total time in any particular cargo helicopter (above a practical minimum of approximately 100 hours) is not nearly so important as the ability to fly it under the widely varying conditions experienced in mountainous terrain such as Algeria, which is beset by violent thermals, high winds and a very wide range of temperatures.

Therefore, the French Army has established the designation of a co-pilot, whereby the inexperienced pilot flies for at least 200 hours on missions with a more experienced pilot before he is turned loose by himself. Only in this manner does he obtain split second timing and spontaneous recognition of what the helicopter can and cannot do under all conditions he may face in any mission. This is not obtained by flying airfield patterns and making long cross country flights.

A "QUADROTOR" HELICOPTER hovers over Ft. Eustis, Va., during a test flight. The Army has awarded an $89,000 contract to Convertiwing, Inc., Amityville, N. Y., for continued research development of the four-rotor idea. Use of small rotors and simple rotor hubs is expected to reduce the cost of lifting payloads. Greater and more rapid response to movement of the pilot's controls is claimed for the new configuration.

U. S. TRAINING. This type of operational training is not being given widely enough to U. S. Military Helicopter Pilots. It is strongly recommended that one or more U.S. helicopter companies or squadrons be formulated and operated in places such as Camp Carson or Lowry AFB, Colo. This must be done in conjunction with a definite rotational program for all U. S. Military cargo troop assault helicopter pilots. It is further believed the classification of "limited operational" pilot should be established for pilots until they have obtained such experience.

This is such a vital point that it cannot be over-emphasized. It is considered evident that the majority of U. S. military cargo helicopter pilots, if subjected to severe mountainous combat operations today, would experience excessive operational losses and would fail to exploit the full potential of their aircraft.

PILOT IN COMMAND. The French Army experience has shown it is absolutely necessary that the pilot be in command of all personnel on board the helicopter and that he must actually give the order for troop disembarkment. In several instances, the enemy began firing immediately after touchdown and the pilot then decided to take off leaving several disembarked troops behind. Therefore, the French have decreed that the pilot and not the troop commander gives the actual order for disembarkment.

NO SEATS OR SAFETY BELTS. Troop seats and safety belts are not used because the troop seats reduce the floor area and resulting space for troop disembarkment. Consequently the troops require a longer period of time to disembark. Furthermore, when the seats were removed and the safety belts were then attached to the cargo tie down rings on the floor and coving, it was then found the troops ensnared themselves in the safety belts and that they would trip over them during disembarkment.

Sound proofing blankets, however, must remain in the helicopter since they prevent the troops guns and packs from catching on intercostals and frames. When it is considered that most of the missions are only a few minutes in length, it is quite practical for the troops to sit on the floor. Thus, they are free to group and disembark at the instant they are commanded. Grouping frequently takes place during the final approach.

LIMIT TROOPS CARRIED. The French (Commandant de Legionnaire Commando) have placed a statutory limitation on the number of troops that can be carried in the various helicopters they use. This results from the fact that when troops are fully equipped with bandoliers of grenades, many extra clips of ammunition, helmets, packs, rations, radios, side arms, as well as carbines and burp guns, they become quite bulky and need a considerable amount of space. Overcrowding causes confusion and has resulted in shooting each other due to tangled weapons. We experienced one instance of this when a commando inadvertently pulled a trigger on one of his neighbor's burp guns and put a half clip of ammunition into the fuel tank.

A secondary reason for limiting the number of troops is the claustrophobic effect of overcrowding which combines with and magnifies the pre-battle phobias and tensions.

PROTECTIVE ARMOR. So far, the French Army does not consider armor necessary. They have armor available for the transmissions and oil coolers but have decided they do not wish to expend approximately 115 pounds for it. However, the pilot and co-pilot wear flak vests and sit on an additional vest.

SELF SEALING TANKS. Self sealing fuel tanks are being installed in the H-21 as rapidly as available and it can be safely said that lack of incendiary fire by the rebels is probably the only reason helicopters have not been shot down in flames. Self sealing oil tanks are already installed in the French Army H-21's.

M/G Bowen Leads 82d In Jump From H-37A

Maj. Gen. John W. Bowen, USA, Commanding General of the 82d Airborne Division, became the first general to make a parachute jump from the Army's new twin-engined Sikorsky H-37A Helicopter at Fort Bragg, N. C.

General Bowen and seven other volunteers from the 82d were the first from a tactical "line outfit" to jump from the H-37A.

Forty other Division men jumped from an older Sikorsky H-34 Helicopter. The jumps, which were filmed for test purposes by movie cameras mounted outside the two aircraft and by another movie camera in a twin-rotored vertol H-21 flying alongside, were only the latest in a series of tests for which the 82d has provided volunteer jumpers.

Absence of any back-blast from propellers and slower forward speed of craft made the sensation of falling much more pronounced in the four or five seconds before the 'chute opened, the jumpers said. All those asked for their reactions considered this sensation different and pleasant.

Camp Gary Graduates 92 In Primary Flight

How the Army has progressed from the horse cavalry to sky cavalry and the big future in Army Aviation was outlined by Brig. Gen. Roland del Mar, USA, at the graduation of 92 student officers in Army Primary Flight Training at Camp Gary, Tex.

The student officers of Class 57-9 were the first to complete the 4-month primary flight training course at Camp Gary since it became a contract flying school operated for the Army by Wm. J. Graham & Son.

"You have stepped into the beginning of the real Army of the future," General del Mar, assistant commander of the 4th Armored Division, Fort Hood, said.

1st Lt. Clarence M. Hulett, USA, was honor man who made a perfect flying proficiency grade and earned a high academic grade. Hulett is a rated helicopter pilot. 2d Lt. Leo E. Schmitz, USA, who also holds a helicopter rating, was second highest.

Top man academically and third high in the class was 1st Lt. Keith L. Isham, USA, a former state director of Aeronautics for Kansas.

All graduating Army primary pilots go from Camp Gary to Fort Rucker, Alabama, for advanced and tactical training.

CHAIRMAN CORDINER'S statement that no significant improvements in the Services' personnel problems can be brought about by enacting "bits and pieces" and granting "watered-down" incentives is a slap at what Defense Secretary Wilson has been forced to do—not at Mr. Wilson personally. (Mr. Wilson already has referred to his own actions as "patchwork.") Mr. Cordiner, in fact, thinks very highly of Mr. Wilson. "Everyone in the Department," he said, "can take deep pride in the progress that has been made under the leadership of Secretary Wilson and our military leaders."

TOP OFFICERS of the Armed Services, in Washington and in the field, are "perhaps the most underpaid executives in the nation," Mr. Cordiner says. (His committee's recommendations for substantial increases in the upper grades came in early for heavy criticism.) Yet, says Mr. Cordiner, this deficiency "must be obvious to everyone who stops to think of the difficulty, scope, and responsibility of their work."

SIGNIFICANT ENDORSEMENT of the Cordiner Report is coming from the Association of the U. S. Army in the June issue of its magazine. Because Gen. LeMay and the Air Force were in the forefront plugging for career incentive pays, there was a faint suspicion of it in other services. But the AUSA will say "it is convinced that it will benefit the nation, the Army, and every individual serving in the Army," and will call for adoption of the plan in its entirety. (The Air Force Association has long vigorously campaigned for the measure.)

THERE WAS A TIME when officer promotions in the Air Force far outstripped Army advancements. That's no longer the case. During the year starting 1 July, the Army plans 11,192 promotions to ranks of captain and above—50 of them to general officer. AIR FORCE PLANS, reported in detail in last week's issue of The Journal, forecast 9283 officer advancements—25 to general officer. The Air Force will have a total of about 143,500 Regular officers on 30 June 1958, compared to 100,000 in the Army.

THE ARMY GREEN UNIFORM may be authorized for wear by women; it's under consideration now, with final decision being held up pending completion of studies on logistical and budgetary implications. The Army will begin issuing the green garb to new enlisted men on 1 July, on which date it becomes the required winter-service uniform for officers and an optional on-duty uniform for enlisted men.

NO VALLEYS will be permitted in the crown of the new Army Green overseas cap. General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, has directed that the cap be worn on a straight line. Four kinds of braid will be authorized: blue-green for enlisted; silver and black for warrant officers, gold and black for officers and solid gold for general officers. GARRISON CAPS will cost $4.90 for enlisted men, $13.25 for company grade officers and $19.25 for field grade and general officers.

DoD'S NEW DECLASSIFIER, Adm. John M. Hoskins (see story on page 2), will start off his new task with three skilled helpers. Ass't SecDef Murray Snyder says Lt. Col. Charles Hinkle, USAF, a long-time PubInfo specialist and former newsman, will be Adm. Hoskins' principal assistant. Paul Leach, WWI war correspondent and veteran chief of the Washington Bureau of the combined Knight Newspapers, will act as consultant, supplying "an independent objective viewpoint." Adm. Arthur Davis, USN (Ret), who did such an outstanding job as special censor and declassifier during the 1951 hearings on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal, will be advisor to the new director.

PEOPLE IN THE TORNADO area in Missouri will long remember the valiant and whole-hearted relief work done there this week by the personnel at Richards-Gebaur AFB at Grandview. Col. John H. Bell, base commander, dispatched all available men and rescue equipment to the devastated area. More than 900 Medical and Air Police personnel worked throughout the night. Brig. Gen. Clifford H. Rees, CO of the 20th Air Division, and Brig. Gen. Edward W. Swarz, of the Central Air Defense Command, stayed at the scene and aided in the care of the injured and homeless. Also taking part were members of the Air Force Aid Society, Grey Ladies, and the Wives Clubs. Two of the Base civilian employees were killed. No military personnel were reported among the dead but it is estimated about 20 lost their houses and all their belongings.

IT'S LIKE PULLING TEETH trying to have an area declared "remote" for the purpose of providing dental care to Stateside military families. Officials at Camp Lejeune, N. C., have made a request for a "remote" classification, but are running into stiff opposition from a group of civilian dentists who have set up offices just outside the Camp. Dr. Frank B. Berry, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), told The Journal that DoD does not wish to be arbitrary in declaring "remote" areas and is seeking the concurrence of State Dental Societies. In some cases, the Health and Medical Chief said, DoD may be "forced to override the desires of State Societies."

A SPECIALIST IN SPECIAL INVESTIGATIONS is Brig. Gen. John E. Murray, USAF. Gen. Murray, now Director of Special Investigations, Dept. of the AF, was Director of Special Investigations at USAFE, Wiesbaden, before assuming his present job two years ago. He also belongs to that special category of general officers under 45 years of age, although he was inadvertently omitted from the list compiled for The Journal by the USAF and published in our issue of 20 April. He was born 2 June 1914 and made B/G in 1955.

THE ARMY COULD BE FORCED TO CHANGE its decision to have officers and enlisted men wear their Army Green garrison caps with their summer tropical worsted uniforms. The House Army Appropriations Subcommittee has gone on record against the plan. Committee members prefer that a matching cap be provided for the summer uniform.

News Coverage of Matters that Concern You Most

ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL has a reporter assigned to the Capitol, another to the Pentagon Building, (Department of Defense, Army and Air Force), and still another to the Navy Department. Others are constantly roving . . . attending important industry press conferences, and visiting military installations of all kinds all over the world. Everything you read in THE JOURNAL is new news . . . we carry no syndicated features whatsoever.

MAJ. GEN. JAMES P. COONEY, MC, USA, (left), Deputy Surgeon General, Department of Army, discusses the Japanese intern program with Col. Robt. B. Skinner, MC, USA, Commanding Officer of Tokyo U.S. Army Hospital, during a recent visit of the General to the hospital facilities.

Capt. Webster Again Active
President Eisenhower has nominated Capt. George E. Webster for reappointment to the active list of the Regular Air Force from the temporary disability retired list.

Send 300 Geodesic Domes To Japan

Production models of the Geodesic
Dome are en route to the First Marine Division in Japan.

The initial production order, consisting of 200 42-foot and 100 57-foot domes, has been rail-shipped from Milwaukee, Wisc., by Magnesium Products, Inc., to the East Coast where they will be transported to the Far East by Navy transport.

The radical igloo-shaped structures were designed for the Marine Corps by Dr. Buckminster Fuller, the Nation's leading expert in geodesics, and are seen as the answer to the problem of providing field shelters for forward combat aviation units.

Headquarters has predicted that all tents will be phased out of the Marine Corps by June 1958.

The 300 Geodesic Domes which are being sent to the 1st MAW are constructed of interlocking, extruded aluminum triangles which can be field-assembled in about 30 minutes. The only tool required to set up a dome is a screw driver. The domes are covered with heat, water and wind-resistant nylon plastic.

The compact-packaged, lightweight domes readily fit into the Corps' "vertical envelopment" concept with its emphasis on mobility. In combat situations, helicopters will be able to air-lift the domes to new tactical areas as the battle lines move forward. In this way, the striking power of the Corps Air Arm will be kept in close contact with the front.

Michigan Extends Date For Bonus Applications

Michigan veterans of the Korean Emergency have been given another year in which to apply for their Korean bonus, it has been announced by Maj. Gen. George C. Moran, The Adjutant General of Michigan. A bill extending the Korean Veterans' Military Pay Fund Act for a one-year period has been signed by Governor G. Mennen Williams. The Act originally had expired 6 March.

"Some 25,000 veterans of the Korean Emergency have not yet applied for their Michigan bonus," General Moran said. "Among these outstanding claimants are an estimated 6,000 who are still members of the active Armed Forces." Bonus officials feel that many men and women in the service have the mistaken impression that they have to be separated before they can apply for the Michigan bonus.

Veterans in the Armed Forces may secure applications for the Michigan Korean Emergency bonus by writing to The Adjutant General of Michigan, Military Pay (Bonus) Section, P. O. Box 1401, Lansing 4, Mich. In filling out the application, veterans in the Armed Forces need only to complete the Certificate on page 3 in lieu of the Report of Separation, DD Form 214.

Personnel Strength

The following table shows the current and projected military strength for the four Services, as presented by the House Appropriations Committee in connection with the Department of Defense '58 Appropriation Bill.

The Committee states that "the totals reflect a continuation of the force levels currently in existence. This leveling of numbers of forces and attendant requirements has undoubtedly been an important factor in the more stabilized funding requirements and in holding down unwarranted costs in the Defense budget."

Senate Group OKs Capehart Extension

The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency this week approved a one-year extension of the Capehart military family housing program.

The Committee also boosted mortgage authority from $200 million to $400 million as a means of providing for construction of military housing where private funds are unavailable.

The House has passed similar legislation, but added $300 million to current mortgage authority.

Following Senate action—if the Senate Committee's recommendations are approved—the measure will have to go to conference.

In connection with the House-passed bill, Pentagon housing authorities said more private money is now becoming available to the military services for construction of Capehart housing and it may not be necessary to use the new mortgage authority.

Ft. Bragg Gets First Airborne Signal Bn.

The only unit of its kind in the Army was created at Ft. Bragg, N. C., when the 50th Signal Battalion became the 50th Airborne Signal Battalion (Airborne Corps). With a present strength of about 650 men the battalion will have slots for approximately 200 jumpers.

Some 90 men of the battalion already have signed up for jump school according to 2d Lt. William Douphrate, 50th personnel officer.

Orders directing the conversion of the 50th were signed by Maj. Gen. Douglas V. Johnson, USA, Third Army Chief of Staff. The orders stated that there would be no change in assignment or attachment of the battalion, which has been a supporting unit of the XVIII Airborne Corps. Lt. Col. Joseph A. Thornton is the commander of the 50th Signal Battalion.

$2.5 Billion Cut From '58 Budget old propeller-driven planes and halt proficiency flying in such craft.

● Furniture for public quarters should be restricted to basic, not-easily transportable items. A study is requested.

● Funds for permanent changes of station are again reduced. If substantial improvement in this field is not evident by next year, the Committee may consider placing a statutory limitation on PCS moves.

● Overseas service should be placed on a voluntary basis "to the greatest extent possible."

● The Services are abusing the assignment of military personnel to clubs, rest hotels and commissaries. Service Secretaries and area and base commanders will be held responsible in the future for continued waste of manpower resulting from such assignments.

● The Pentagon has no "effective organization for the evaluation of guided missiles," although substantial progress has been made in the ballistic missile area. The ballistic missile program "should be under constant review, looking toward better management and dollar savings."

● The Secretary of Defense is requested to survey Service requirements for passenger vehicles and substantially reduce "the entire fleet either on a Department-wide or Service-wide basis."

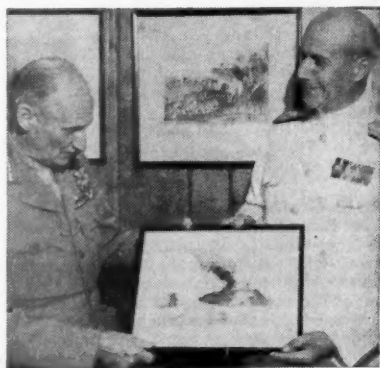

● No increase is provided in the funds for the schooling of dependent children of military families. Defense had recommended that the $245 allowance be boosted to $265 to take care of rising costs. The Committee retained the $245 maximum and wrote in a new provision to insure that schooling will be provided to no dependents except "minors."

Pres. Says Budget Cut Perils Defense

President Eisenhower, at his press conference 22 May, said that about half of the $2.5 billion cut in Defense funds voted by the House Appropriations Committee would cut directly into the nation's guided missile and aircraft programs.

The country is going to suffer if the reduction stands, he said. He stated that about $1.3 billion of the $2.5 billion is not actually a cut at all, but a "book-keeping tactic." The remaining $1.2 billion cuts directly into the defense program in such areas as aircraft and guided missiles, the President said.

He expressed hope that the Senate will restore the entire $1.2 billion.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

DANCE FOR RELIEF— Mrs. Leroy Lewis, Miss Marcia Lewis and Mrs. E. H. Berkenkamp perform the "Can-Can" at a benefit party for Hungarian relief held by Americans in Sweden. Mrs. Lewis and Miss Lewis are the wife and daughter of Lt. Col. Leroy A. Lewis, Assistant Army Attache, and Mrs. Berkenkamp is the wife of Lt. Col. E. H. Berkenkamp, Asst. Air Attache.

THE introduction of its new slate of officers closed the recent meeting of the Air Force Officers' Wives Club of Washington. However, before turning the gavel over to the new president, Mrs. Oliver S. Picher, there was one final item of business for the outgoing president, Mrs. Joseph M. McCoid. The allocation of a generous amount of money to the official agencies, such as the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club, the Air Force Aid Society, the Henry H. Arnold Educational Fund and the new Air Force Hospital at Andrews AFB, D. C., which required a majority vote of members present.

SSM&A Club Maintained By Service Wives & Daughters—

Organized in 1872 by a small group of officers' wives, the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club of Washington, in the truest sense, has proved "a home away from home" for men of all the Armed Forces. It is operated by a small staff of paid employees and a large force of volunteer Service wives and daughters, and is supported largely by the generous contributions of sundry officers' wives' organizations in the Washington area.

Occupying, since 1923, a beautiful old three-story Washington residence, the Club boasts a membership of over 7,000 officers' wives. It is open at all hours, night and day, and provides rooms and baths for overnight, or merely a shave and bath, for Servicemen. The Club is equipped with lounges, radio and television sets, a recreation room, a library and patio, and meals at a minimum rate.

Proudly claiming that its doors have never closed in 85 years, the organization is, indeed, a most worthy achievement that the Service wives and daughters of Washington support.

Service Club Dance Honors Couple—

A dance held at the Officers' Service Club, at 1644 21st St., N.W., Washington, on the evening of 17 May, honored Miss Zita Clextion, daughter of VAdm. E. W. Clextion, and her fiancé, Lt. Wayne A. Sweet, USAF, who were to be married on 25 May. Hostesses for the affair were daughters of officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force, with Mrs. Clyde B. Parker as chairman. Members of the decorating committee included Misses Anne Gerling, Betty Cooney and Ann Hill.

Miss Clextion and Lieutenant Sweet are the 120th couple to marry, who have met at one of the Officers' Club dances.

MSC Birthday—

Medical Service Corps officers gathered at the Officers Club at Walter Reed Army Medical Center on 18 May to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the corps.

Members of the receiving line who welcomed the guests were Col. Bernard Aabel, Chief of MSC, and Mrs. Aabel; Col. Clarence Frey, Chief of Pharmacy Supply and Administration, and Mrs. Frey; and Lt. Col. John Sheridan, Chief of Optometry, and Mrs. Sheridan. Colonels Robert Black (Ret.) and Othmar F. Goriup, both former Chiefs of MSC, joined in the festivities.

Helping the MSC members celebrate were the following officers and their wives: Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, Commanding General of Walter Reed; Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., Chief of Information, Dept. of the Army; and Maj. Gen. James M. Epperly, Chief of the Dental Division, Office of the Surgeon General. Other special guests were Brig. Gen. Sam F. Seeley, Chief of Professional Services Division, SGO; Brig. Gen. Frank E. Wilson, member of the Joint Blood Council, Inc., and Mrs. Wilson; and Brig. Gen. Arthur L. Irons, Director of Walter Reed's Dental Activities, and Mrs. Irons.

Featured at the gala reception was a 175-pound, five-foot high birthday cake. Six inch caducei stood out at the top of the six-tiered cake, sporting the letters S.P.A. and MS (sanitary, pharmacy, administration, and medical service). Fruit-filled swans carved from 100-pound blocks of ice flanked the anniversary masterpiece. Another highlight was the showing of proposed seals for the Corps' insignia, designed by the Director of the Army Prosthetics Research Laboratory, Col. Maurice J. Fletcher, and members of his staff.

Christen Swimming Pool—

Andrews Air Force Base, observing an event second only to the recent opening of the new officers' club, the club's new swimming pool will be officially christened at a gala Patio party on Saturday, 1 June.

Sponsored by USAF Air Weather Service headquarters, the party will feature a Parade of Swim Fashions, recalling the history of swim suits from 1890 to 1957. Eight men's and 25 women's suits will be modeled around the new club pool in the bloomer-to-bikini parade.

Navy SC Officers' Wives' Club—

The Navy Supply Corps Officers' Wives Club of the Washington area, gathered for tea at the Army-Navy Country Club, on 14 May, to honor Mrs. Ralph J. Arnold, wife of Rear Admiral Arnold, Paymaster General of the Navy. Mrs. Arnold, president of the Club, was presented with a bouquet of long stemmed roses in appreciation for her gracious leadership, inspiring enthusiasm and unselfish service.

Receiving the members with the honor guest were Mrs. T. L. Becknell, Jr., wife of the Deputy Chief of the Bureau of MRS. WEBSTER MILLS (center) presents a check for $127 for the Youth Council of Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to Lt. Col. (Chaplain) Arthur O. Hoppe. Mrs. Mills is president of the Officers' Wives' Club, and Mrs. Thomas C. Eveland (right) is treasurer. The money was earned by a Bake Sale and a "Share-the-Talent" project for which club members made ceramic, needlework, and leather items which were sold at the Thrift Shop. Mrs. Eveland was chairman of the project.

Marine Corps Reserve "Toys For Tots" Drive Brought 5-Million Gifts To Needy

The Marine Corps Reserve collected and helped to distribute more than five million toys during the 1956 Christmas "Toys for Tots" campaign.

The drive, conducted in more than 250 communities in this country and Hawaii, succeeded in providing Christmas gifts for almost a million needy children.

This was the ninth year the "Toys for Tots" program has been held, and fewer broken or non-usable toys were contributed than in past years. For instance, this past drive showed an increase in new toys of 22 per cent, an increase in good condition toys of 30 per cent, and a decrease of old, unusable toys of 39 per cent.

Thus, the annual program has reached the point when the concentration is less upon the quantity of toys as the quality and the need for greater planning and consolidation of the yearly event.

The program is based on national direction from the Headquarters of the Marine Corps, but tailored to operation on the community level. The support for the 1956 drive by community organizations throughout the country was the greatest since the beginning of "Toys for Tots." The Shell Oil Company participated in 106 different cities, the Salvation Army in 92 communities and Boy Scouts in 69, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 43.

Among other local chapters of national business and organization with which the Marine Corps Reserve worked in five or more cities are the Lions International, Moose Lodge, Elks Lodge, Optimist, Rotary International, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Marine Corps League and YMCA.

In addition, many other groups including hospitals, prisons, religious charities, theater chains, various unions and hundreds of local and national business and civic groups voluntarily cooperated to the benefit of the drive.

Supplies and Accounts, Mrs. E. W. Sutherland, executive chairman of the Club, and Mrs. G. F. Gould, luncheon chairman.

Among those presiding at the colorful Japanese tea tables were Mrs. O. P. Lattu, wife of Rear Admiral Lattu and Mrs. L. P. Kimball, wife of Rear Admiral Kimball.

Chemical Corps Wives Club Honors Mrs. Fries—

Mrs. William M. Creasy, honorary president of the Chemical Corps' Wives Club, conferred the honor of president emeritus of the Club upon Mrs. Amos A. Fries, wife of Maj. General Fries, USA-Ret, the Army's first Chief Chemical Officer, at the Club's May luncheon.

The organization's annual Spring dinner dance is planned for Saturday evening, 1 June, at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club, following cocktails at 7:30 p.m.

Jr. DUSA Election—

The Washington area Chapter of Junior Army Daughters, at a meeting on 13 April, elected the following officers: chairman, Miss Nancy Smith; secretary, Patricia Francon, and treasurer, Charley Ward. Mrs. J. K. Schmidt and Mrs. David F. Kovarik are the advisors to the Junior group.

Meetings will be held once a month throughout the Summer. The next regular meeting will be held on 8 June from 10-12 a.m., at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., when new members will be welcomed.

Daughters of Army officers from 16 through college years are eligible for membership. At this meeting, arrangements will be made for the first important event on the social calendar, a picnic in honor of 80-odd cadets from West Point, who will be in this area 10-13 June. Each of the Daughters will bring a picnic lunch and swimming facilities will be available. Only Army daughters who are members of the Chapter, or those who attend the meeting on 8 June, will be eligible for attendance.

Those interested in joining and members can call Miss Judith Hert for reservations at JACSON 8-1428.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD CEREBRAL PALSY POSTER BOY, CHARLES NEIL GIBBS, JR., receives from Marine Corps Commandant General Randolph McC. Pate, a "campaign" medal for his fight against his crippling disease. The son of M/Sgt. Charles N. Gibbs, US, MC, was cited by the Commandant for his personal victory over the condition as well as for his efforts in behalf of the nation's cerebral palsied. "You are," said the Commandant in his citation, "a fighting son of a fighting Marine... an outstanding example to the youth of our nation, that physical handicaps can and are being overcome by the brave and faithful."

General Randolph McC. Pate, Marine Corps Commandant, commenting on the past drive, declared: "It makes me particularly happy to learn that Marine Corps Reservists, Marine Corps regulars and their friends and neighbors once again joined together so successfully to bring happiness to needy children across the nation."

Marine Officers' Wives Club Election—

The Marine Officers' Wives Club met at the Army-Navy Country Club, on 15 May, when the main business of the day was the election of officers for the year 1957-58. The voting resulted in the following slate of officers: Mrs. J. P. Riseley, president; Mrs. J. G. Walsh, Jr., vice-president; Mrs. M. H. Floom, treasurer; Mrs. L. A. Smith, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. A. J. Croft, Jr., recording secretary.

Mrs. Clifton B. Cates and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, both wives of retired Commandants of the Marine Corps, together with Col. Julia E. Hamblett, Director of Women Marine, were greeted by the honorary president, Mrs. Randolph McC. Pate, and the outgoing president, Mrs. James Berkeley.

Mrs. Julia Montgomery, member of a well known firm of the New York Stock Exchange, gave an informative talk on the book "How to Lay A Nest Egg" by Edgar Scott.

Finance OWC To Elect—

The Army Finance Officers' Wives Club will hold its final luncheon meeting of the year on Tuesday, 28 May, at 12 noon at the Army-Navy Country Club. The business of the day will be the election of officers for the coming year.

The retiring officers are Mesdames Vernon M. Buehler, president; Oscar R. Bowyer, vice-president; Werner L. Dickenson, treasurer; and Richard T. Kennedy, secretary.

Bridge and canasta will be played for the remainder of the afternoon. Mrs. Nicholas S. Strider is the luncheon chairman and her hostesses will be Mesdames Jeremiah B. Monk, John O. Hunnicutt and Allan A. Sawyer.

"WOMEN OF THE YEAR"

HOLLOMAN AIR DEVELOPMENT CENTER, N. M.—Holloman honored its "Women of the Year" at special Armed Forces Day ceremonies.

Named "Woman of the Year" in the Officer's wife category was Mrs. O. R. Haney, wife of Holloman's Chief of Staff. Mrs. A. E. Omillian won the like award in the Enlisted Wives' division.

Mrs. Haney has taken leading roles in such base community activities as the Girl Scouts, Red Cross Gray Ladies, of Officer's Wives Club. She has been a representative to the Youth Activity Council, an officer of the Parent-Teacher Association and a room mother at the elementary school here.

Mrs. Omillian has served as both Coordinator and Secretary with Dependent's Assistance. She has been a member of the Base Advisory Council and was Emergency Casualty Chairman. In addition to being a Brownie leader, room mother and Secretary of the Teen Age Club, she is a regular hostess at the Holloman Hospitality House. She is also a leading member of the N.C.O. Wives' Auxiliary and the Base Altar Society.

Other "Women of the Year" candidates who received honorable mentions are Mrs. Mark W. Gress; Mrs. H. S. Judy; Mrs. T. C. Kelly; Mrs. B. A. Jacques; Mrs. C. C. Shortz and Mrs. R. Wolfe.

CITES ROLE OF WIVES

ATLANTA GENERAL DEPOT, GA.—"We have specially designated days for honoring the soldier," said Brig. Gen. W. E. Brougher, USA-Ret., addressing the Atlanta General Depot Women's Club at its May 14 meeting.

"But, for some unaccountable reason, nobody has yet undertaken to recognize and pay tribute to the heroic role of the Army wife in any special way."

General Brougher, who turned poet during the 3½ years he was held prisoner by the Japanese after the fall of Bataan, read a poem he dedicated to the Army wife—"Neille O'Dee."

"You're the strength behind your husbands and children," the general said, "and you have within you the power to imbue your families with a faith strong enough to sustain them should a testing time come."

General Brougher was introduced by Mrs. J. R. Ranck, honorary president of the club and wife of the depot commanding general.

Gen. and Mrs. Mulcahy Hosts

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Senior students at the San Diego College for Women were invited to a tea, given at the home of Lt. Gen. (USMC-Ret) and Mrs. Francis P. Mulcahy, at Coronado, recently, when the hostess was Miss Virginia Rodee, daughter of RAdm. and Mrs. Walter Rodee, who is a member of the class. Following her graduation on 26 May, she will leave for Japan, to join her parents, who are stationed there. Another Service "junior," Miss Diane Holland, has just returned to Coronado for a visit with her parents, Capt. (MC, USN) and Mrs. J. L. Holland.

"May Mannequins" was the theme chosen for the annual Navy Relief Society luncheon and fashion show, held at the Admiral Kidd Officers' Club, when some 475 Service wives and guests attended. Mrs. Paul Foley was in charge of the program, and seated together were other members of the arrangements committee, which included Mesdames R. C. Lynch, Jr., C. T. Caulfield, W. S. Stovall and G. W. Wilcox. Flag officers' wives seen luncheon together were Mesdames A. M. Pride, T. A. Wornham, A. L. Bowser, C. C. Hartman, W. N. Nation and J. N. Carson.

People Of Service

FORT BENNING, GA.—Junior Army Daughters here have presented a check for $150 to the post's Youth Activities Club. The donation was made from funds which the teenage girls earned. They sponsored and operated a booth at the annual Fort Benning 49er benefit in March especially to increase their fund for such activities.

The check was presented to outgoing YAC tennis chairman, Col. Lloyd R. Salisbury by Miss Pene Tourville, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. C. W. Tourville, JADA treasurer.

Also on hand for the presentation ceremony were YAC president, Col. Albert E. Ward, Col. Owen T. McCloskey, new YAC tennis chairman; Miss Margaret Rhea, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert L. Rhea, Jr., JADA vice-president, and Miss Avery Keatley, daughter of Mrs. John Keatley, JADA historian.

President of Fort Benning Junior Army Daughters is Miss Hazel Austin, daughter of Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Thomas A. Austin of Columbus, Ga.

FORT CHAFFEE, ARK.—Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Dunn, commanding general here, has presented local and national agency representatives a total of over $18,000 in donations from the soldiers at Fort Chaffee.

Receiving checks were Mr. H. R. Hestand, Ark., State Treasurer of the Heart Association, Mr. Carnall Gardner, Ft. Smith Boys' Club, General Dunn, Capt. Arlie Childers of the Army Emergency Relief, Mr. Warren Kimbrough, Cancer Society, and Mr. James Beckman, Boy Scouts of America.

WUERZBURG, GERMANY—Providing Wuerzburg dependent children with a place to play softball, baseball, volleyball and basketball has become the project of Co C, 18th Engr. Bn., stationed at Emery Barracks here.

"We're going to have one of the nicest setups for dependent children in all of Europe," was the promise of M/Sgt. Robert Jeffcott, Wuerzburg AYA director.

Currently, the 18th Engineers' Co. C is working with pick and shovel laying base-lines for two softball fields, one Pony League baseball field, and leveling five volleyball and five basketball courts. All are located within the Lincoln Apartment and Skyline areas.

Sponsored jointly by the AYA and the Wuerzburg Dads Club, the new sports fields are being constructed under supervision of Capt. William Read, USA, CO, Co. C, 18th Engr. Bn.

for resolution.

General Robinson also pointed out that extension of the Medicare program "to retired personnel and their dependents may be worthy of consideration, particularly for periods of mobilization."

He also discussed these problems:

"Many dependents feel they have had no relief for their ordinary medical needs, namely, outpatient care and this may sometime become an area for consideration."

"Certain dependents feel that the required payment of $25 minimum for each hospital admission is wrong for cases such as tonsillectomies and certain gynecological operations which are complicated by hemorrhage after they return home from the hospital and require readmission." He said "Exceptions for such readmissions may become justified as the program progresses."

His list, General Robinson said, is not intended to be all-inclusive of future problems "since new ones are brought to our attention almost daily."

The difficulties which have arisen as a result of the elimination of dental care for military families were pointed up in a recent JOURNAL interview (11 May) with Maj. Gen. James M. Epperly, DC, USA.

The Defense Department, as previously reported, has created a special committee to look into the situation.

They Retire

COL. EARLE T. SHOWALTER, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel for Headquarters Eighteenth Air Force, Donaldson AFB, S. C., was guest of honor at an Armed Forces Day review and parade honoring his retirement. Colonel Showalter and his wife, Margaret, who have one daughter, Mrs. Curtis P. Fritsch, jr., will most probably return to Houston.

LT. COL. THEODORE M. BALL, USA, Chief of Installations and Services Branch, G4, for the Advance Section, US Army Communications Zone, Verdun, France, was honored at a retreat parade there recently marking his retirement after 26 years of active service.

LT. COL. HERSHEL J. MARTIN, Plans and Training Officer, Fourth U. S. Army Ordnance Section, retires from the Army 31 May after more than 29 years of service. With his wife, Mildred, and their two children, Hershel, jr., 14 and Larry, 10, Colonel Martin will live at 516 South Vandiver Road, San Antonio, Tex.

Retirement ceremonies honoring MAJ. GEN. EDMUND B. SEBREE, USA, Assistant to the Commanding General, U. S. Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va., will be held there 31 May. A native of Olney, Ill., General Sebree was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry 1 Nov., 1918.

Art Show Features

Retired Officers' Work

The lobby of the new United Services Automobile Association Building in San Antonio, Tex., has served as an art gallery recently. It has featured an exhibit of outstanding paintings by 25 local artists of The San Antonio River Art Group headed by Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, USA-Ret.

The exhibited paintings were selected by a three member jury from more than 100 works submitted for the art group's Fiesta week show. Included in the 25 exhibited paintings, were seven painted by retired officers of the Armed Services or their immediate families, residing in San Antonio, as follows:

Col. Burton L. Lucas, USA-Ret.
Col. Richard Sandusky, USA-Ret.
Mrs. Jessie Petty, widow of Colonel Petty, Deceased.
Col. Temple Holland, USA-Ret.
Col. E. P. Crandell, USA-Ret.
Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, USA-Ret.
Frances Brinkmeyer, daughter of Colonel Brinkmeyer, USSA-Ret.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of the Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

AS part of the Coast Guard's six-year plan to increase the number of operational aircraft from 128 to 195, it will be necessary to expand some existing aviation facilities and to set up new detachments.

A story telling of the long-range aircraft replacement plan appeared in the 18 May edition of THE JOURNAL, page 35.

In its "Report on the Requirements of Coast Guard Aviation" which has been submitted to the House Appropriations Committee, VAdm. Alfred C. Richmond, Coast Guard Commandant, stated that "the augmentation of existing facilities and establishment of new facilities would go forward more or less concurrently with the proposed build-up in aircraft strength."

The Commandant said that only minor funding for the facilities' items is necessary for Fiscal Year 1958, since the bulk of 1958 recommended planes will involve replacements. These can be deployed to existing facilities.

The Coast Guard Chief proposes that funding for the facilities, in the amount of about $16.4 million, be spread out over Fiscal Years 1958 through 1963. In FY 58, approximately $0.5 million will be needed. In the succeeding years, about $5 million will be required annually.

In all, the Report recommends establishment of 17 new air detachments. Of this number, 13 will require new facilities which will cost about $1,384,000. Approximately $1 million is programmed for four hangars, at $250,000, each at Cape May, N. J.; Galveston, Tex.; Coos Bay/Newport, Ore.; and, the Columbia River Entrance/Grays Harbor, Wash. The Report explains that the hangars are needed to house helicopters which are subject to wind damage on the ground and to protect them from severe weather. The remaining $384,000 will go for communication facilities, ground handling equipment, and tools.

In addition, the Report recommends establishment of two new Air Stations—one at Boston, Mass., and another at New Orleans, La.

The Boston Air Station would replace the "grossly inadequate" Air Station at Salem, Mass., which has neither a landing field nor instrument approach facilities.

The Report points out that the restricted water areas at the Salem area make night operations under adverse weather conditions hazardous for present-day aircraft. The estimated cost of the Boston Air Station is $6.2 million.

The New Orleans Air Station would replace Air Detachments at Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans. It is proposed to locate the new Station at the Department of Defense Airfield (Callender) or at New Orleans Municipal Airport. The approximate cost of the New Orleans Station is $4.7 million.

At the same time, the Coast Guard desires to improve facilities or set up new detachments at the following locations: Argentia, Newfoundland; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Arlington, Va.; Elizabeth City, N. C.; Bermuda; Brunswick, Ga.; Miami, Fla.; San Juan, Puerto Rico; St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mobile, Ala.; Galveston, Tex.; Corpus Christi, Tex.; Coco Solo, Canal Zone; Traverse City, Mich.; Chicago, Ill.; Detroit, Mich.; Buffalo, N. Y.; San Diego, Calif.; Los Angeles, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif.; Port Angeles, Wash.; Annette Island, Alaska; Kodiak, Alaska; Barbers Point, Hawaii; Guam; and Sangley Point, P. I.

PROMOTION PROSPECTS

Coast Guard Headquarters estimates that 221 officers will be given permanent and temporary promotions by 2 July.

As the picture now stands, it appears that there will be room for the temporary advancement of 16 commanders, 13 lieutenant commanders, 43 lieutenants, and 60 lieutenants (jg).

The only permanent promotions anticipated are two captains to flag rank and 87 ensigns to the rank of lieutenant (jg). The ensigns are 1954 graduates of the U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

Of the total number slated for temporary promotions, Headquarters said it plans to make two four-stripe, three three-stripe officers, four lieutenant commanders, and seven two-stripe officers on 30 June.

If the 30 June promotions are effected, the Coast Guard will end up with a Fiscal Year 1957 officer end-strength of 2,621, excluding Number officers who do not figure in the annual computations. This means that the Coast Guard will end this Fiscal Year with 83 more officers than it had at the end of FY 56.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

New GE Engine Boasts Most Thrust Per Pound

The J79, described as "the country's first production jet engine capable of powering aircraft twice the speed of sound," was unveiled in Washington, D. C., this week by the General Electric Company.

In the 10,000-pound thrust class, the engine is said to "produce more thrust per pound of engine weight than any other large jet engine in production today."

Company engineers say the high thrust, efficiency, low weight and small size of the J79 make it a most versatile engine. It will be used in fighter, bomber, interceptor, missile and commercial transport applications.

J. S. Parker, General Electric vice president and general manager of the company's Aircraft Gas Turbine Division, described the J79 as one of the most efficient engine designs ever conceived. He predicted that it will have many years of service as one of the foremost military aircraft power plants.

The J79, developed in cooperation with the U.S. Air Force, has already proved its capabilities in the Convair B-58 bomber, Lockheed F-104 fighter, and Grumman F11F-1F fighter.

An outstanding feature of the J79 is the use of variable stators to provide at all speeds a smooth flow of air inside the engine, thus eliminating the "stall barrier" problem. The device, based on an old principle, accomplishes this by changing the pitch angle of blades in the engine's compression section. In a conventional jet engine, the angle of the blades normally is fixed.

Though the J79 can produce more than twice as much thrust as the company's famous J47 jet engine, it is smaller than the J47. It has a diameter of approximately 3 feet, a length of about 17 feet and is lighter in weight.

Holloman Scientist Joins Curtiss-Wright

One of the world's top guided missile scientists, Dr. Ernest A. Steinhoff, has ended his association with Holloman Air Development Center, N. M., to accept a job in private industry.

Steinhoff, who has served as Chief Scientific Advisor and Technical Director of Research and Development at Holloman since 1949, will work for the Aero-Physics Development Corporation, a subsidiary of Curtiss-Wright, at Santa Barbara, Calif. He will be project officer for all Air Force contracts with his new organization and will also be involved in special assignments concerning guided missiles.

Jets Will Double World Travel, Says PAA

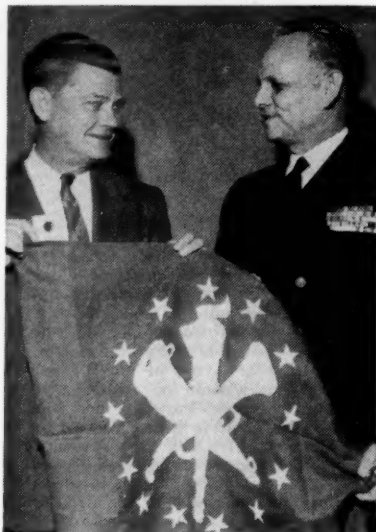

Delivery of one and a quarter billion dollars of jet transports now on order by American international and foreign-flag airlines will more than double present international travel, Juan T. Trippe, President of Pan American World Airways, has reported to stockholders.

Mr. Trippe reported net income of the company for 1956 after taxes as $14,200,000 or $2.31 per share, as compared with $10,200,000 or $1.66 per share in 1955. Passenger revenues increased 19.5 per cent, cargo revenues 16.7 per cent, and operating expenses 18.3 per cent.

Offers Personal Liability Policy

Col. Charles E. Cheever, USA-Ret., President of United Services Automobile Association of San Antonio, Tex., has announced the writing of a Comprehensive Personal Liability Policy for Association members, effective 15 May, 1957.

This new policy is in addition to the Automobile Insurance Policy and the Household and Personal Effects Floater Policy offered by USAA. The CPL Policy is designed to insure the USAA member and all members of his family living with him against liability for injuries suffered by others, other than automobile.

LIBRASCOPE, INC., Glendale, Calif., announces the association of Maj. Arthur Westburg, Jr., USAF, as Military Planning Engineer. Major Westburg served with the 84th Infantry Division in ETO during World War Two, and with the 7th Cavalry Regiment 1st Cavalry Division during the period 1950-51. From 1952 to 1955 he was attached to the AC/s/G2 General Staff. Librascope manufactures digital computers, precision instruments, fire control and navigation systems.

SOLAR AIRCRAFT COMPANY has appointed two new members to its Board of Directors. They are Walker G. Dollmeyer, vice president-operations of the company, and Rudolph W. Weitz, Des Moines, Iowa, business leader and former deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense.

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION, INC., has announced that Mr. A. R. Marcum, TAC Technical Representative for the past fourteen months, has been named to head a new Los Angeles division Engineering Department office with Air Research and Development Command Headquarters, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. T. W. Mackin, former F-100 Representative with the F-100 Project Office, Los Angeles, is replacing Mr. Marcum at TAC. He has been the North American Representative in charge of the F-86K School, Erding, Germany, under the Mutual Defense Assistance Pact program.

VERTOL AIRCRAFT CORP. has appointed William E. Boom European sales manager. He is a major in the Air Force Reserve.

PRATT & WHITNEY AIRCRAFT announces that the J-75 turbojet engine, which it describes as "the most powerful production turbojet engine known to exist in the free world," is now being manufactured at its main East Hartford, Conn., plant. In the 15,000-pound thrust class, the J-75 has been announced as the powerplant for the Martin P6M Sea-Master bomber and the Republic F-105 fighter.

THE GRUMMAN AIRCRAFT ENGINEERING CORP., Bethpage, N.Y., has been named winner of a competition for a new higher performance observation airplane for use by the Army and the Marine Corps. The Grumman plane and its engine were selected by independent Army and Navy evaluation. The engine is a Lycoming T-53 turboprop.

USAF Will Reach Peak In Production Of Planes & Missiles In '58, Gen. Baker Says

Production of air weapons, including airframes and missile frames, will go to a temporary peak of about 6.5 millions of pounds per month the first part of next year after which it will drop to 2.5 per month, according to Maj. Gen. David H. Baker, USAF, Director of Procurement and Production for the Air Materiel Command.

Maj. Gen. Baker

In an address before the Society of Business Magazine Editors in Washington, D. C., on 16 May, General Baker said:

"Present production of air weapons amounts to 5.0 millions of pounds of airframes and missile frames per month. We will go to a temporary peak of about 6.5 millions of pounds per month by the first part of next year (1958). From this level, we will drop to one of 2.5 millions of pounds per month and will continue at that rate through 1962. To give you a benchmark against which to weigh these figures, at the peak of the Korean buildup, the industry turned out eleven (11) millions of pounds per month.

"The manufacturing capacity behind these production levels, measured in terms of square feet of area, are perhaps more impressive. Air Force producers currently have available some 60 millions of square feet of area. Of this total available, only some 40 millions are required for program accomplishment. So that today there are 20 million square feet in the industry which are excess to our requirements. At our level-off period, 1959-60, the utilization should be down to 20 million square feet and there likely will be 50 millions square feet of idle space.

"You will note from these figures that between now and 1960 we will have added an additional 10 millions square feet of capacity to the industry. This increment represents the new specialized facilities that are required for the final check-out, testing and firing of missiles and the unconventional power plants. These new facilities, because of the noise and hazard factors associated with these products are located in areas remote from our population centers. In general, there is little or no manufacturing carried on at these locations, except in the case of the high energy fuels plants.

"But, as the missiles reach functional maturity and are programmed in production quantities for the operational inventory, we will be faced with a decision to be made as to where the manufacturing will be performed. These decisions will be made largely on the basis of cost. There are certain advantages in production economies, tighter coordination of engineering and production, and faster response to change, in a new integrated facility. Against these advantages, however, must be weighed the cost of duplicate overhead structures—that at the present old facility and that for the new specialized integrated facility. Also, the question of disposal of idle facilities at present locations must be solved. Since the cost of our weapons bears the expense of these overheads and facilities maintenance, we simply cannot afford to double cost structures.

"On the other hand many presently existing facilities are adaptable to the production of missiles. It would appear completely logical to plan for their manufacture in existing plants, yet, this raises several problems. There will be cost for re-equipping and re-tooling, setting up of extensive testing equipment, transportation to test sites, extended liaison with tear-down operations at the test site and the usual costs of coordination of two separate locations. Against these costs must be laid those of the capital outlays for a separate integrated facility and the comparative operating differentials."

Buy Cat Electric Sets To Service New Jets

Preparedness to swiftly answer emergency calls to action for the Air Force's new Convair F-102 and McDonnell F-101 jet aircraft will be hastened by a $2,300,000 purchase of trailer-mounted Caterpillar D375 Diesel Electric Sets by the Air Materiel Command.

These 150 kw electric sets will be used to supply power for warmup, calibration and starting these new supersonic fighter-bombers and interceptors.

Three other military orders placed at this time, two through the Chicago Procurement Office, Army Corps of Engineers, and one by the Navy, brings the total of the four orders with Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill., to $4,760,000.

The Department of the Air Force has placed a $1,550,000 order for 250 kw Caterpillar D397 Diesel Electric Sets to provide power for Air Control and Warning Centers across the continent.

Three sizes of tractors, totaling $270,000 were ordered by the Bureau of Aeronautics (Air Marines), Caterpillar DW15 Tractors with D318 Engines and torque converters are being purchased for towing aircraft and ramping seaplanes. Cat No. 977 Traxcavators, equipped with bulldozers and Hyster towing winches, and Cat No. 955 Traxcavators, equipped with bulldozers, are included in the order.

To help carry out Operation Deep Freeze 3 in the Antarctic, the Department of the Navy has placed a $640,000 order for 39 machines. Included are: 5 Low Ground Pressure Cat D8 Tractors, 3 standard gauge D8s, 3 Hyster TL8A cranes for the D8s, 6 Cat No. 955 Traxcavators, 6 No. 955A bulldozers, 4 Cat D4 Tractors with Hyster hydraulic cranes, 5 Caterpillar D315 Twin-Arc Welders, 1 D342 Diesel Electric Set, 1 D315 Diesel Electric Set, 3 Cat D342 Diesel Engines, and 3 Cat D315 Diesel Engines.

Speed House Goods To Pacific Posts

Military families can now ship household goods by van to and from the United States, Japan and Okinawa via Allied Van Lines, it is announced today by Louis Schramm, jr., president.

The door-to-door service, which eliminates expensive and time-consuming crating, has been approved by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Allied Van Lines, the nation's largest mover, already provides similar transportation to Alaska, Germany, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The Allied Van agent at the point of origin will do the preliminary packing and transport the goods in an over-the-road van to the port-handling agent at Port of Embarkation, either Los Angeles or San Francisco. The port-handling agent will inventory the shipment, then load it into a sea-van container, using pads for protection. After customs clearance, the port agent will transport the sea-van to the dock.

In Japan or Okinawa, Allied Van's port-handling agent will unpack the containers and load the contents into modern trailers for ultimate delivery to military personnel.

The same procedure is followed in transporting household goods back to the United States when the serviceman's tour of duty is completed.

All shipments are insured and, because only one bill of lading is involved in the transfer, responsibility is easily established.

The Asiatic Trans-Pacific Co. is agent for Allied Vans in Yokohama, Japan, and Naha, Okinawa.

Allied Vans stateside port agents are Beverly Hills Transfer in Los Angeles, City Transfer Co. and Market Street Storage Co., both in San Francisco.

Army Selection Board Recommends 1,500 For Temporary Lieutenant Colonel

Here are the names of the 1,500 majors recommended by an Army selection board for temporary advancement to lieutenant colonel. (See story on Page 1):

Officers whose names are preceded by an asterisk were selected as "outstanding" from a group with at least four years service in grade as of 31 Dec. 1953. They will be placed at the end of the recommended list.

Those named for increased rank are listed alphabetically, by category:

Army Gets "Lazy Suzan" Automatic Mine-Layer

A mechanical mine planter, which carries mines in a "lazy suzan" type magazine, has been developed by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' Research and Development Laboratories, Fort Belvoir, Va.

During operation, antitank mines are automatically fed into the planting device, consisting primarily of a large side elevating plow which opens a trench to receive the mines, and a mechanism to arm the mines and drop them into the trench. After the mine is planted, the soil drops back into place.

The mine planter is mounted on pneumatic tires and can be towed by any crawler tractor during a mine-laying operation. The planter can be towed by any standard military truck during highway transportation.

The new machine eliminates many man hours formerly required to plant a mine-field. In the past, individual holes had to be dug manually for each emplacement.

The device was developed jointly by Fort Belvoir engineers and The International Harvester Co., Chicago, Ill.

10th Div. IG

WUERZBURG, Germany—New inspector general of the 10th Inf. Div. is Lt. Col. Orrin O. McDaniels, who left a post as executive officer of the Munich Sub-Area Headquarters to take over his new post. He replaces Lt. Col. John W. Marshall, who takes over a post as executive officer of the Garmisch Recreation Area.
